Edmund Brown Is the Name—

Gov. Edmund Brown of California has said that he would, of course, accept the Democratic nomination if voted.

The question is hardly an honest one, as few Americans, if voted it, would refuse it. After all, it is, in a sense, the third highest gift politics can offer. One would need to place the presidency and the vice presidency in first and second place. But to be the nominee of either of the two parties, which provide us with the political mechanism by which we live and have our being as a representative government, is an honor which, if proffered, hardly may be declined.

But to return to Governor Brown.

He has made, and is making, an excellent administrator of his vast and important state. He is the unofficial leader of the younger and more vigorous Democrats who would like to make the party into one more nearly corresponding to their heart's desire.

He is looked upon as a comer—one of those who will come to be a giant in party affairs.

Nomination

He made it plain, in saying that of course he would accept the presidential nomination if offered, that he did not seek it. And, further, that he did not expect it. But he said it. One may be sure a great many ears were thereby pricked up.

The odds are very much against any convulsion of political destiny which would make Edmund Brown the nominee. Yet, it is just possible he may be, when the summer of 1960 rolls around, the strongest man, aside from Adlai Stevenson, the Democrats will have. Not now. Then.

Stevenson doesn't want the nomination. But he deeply wishes to see the party act forthrightly. In 1956 he was able to defeat, and very handily so, too, the Harry Truman-Averell Harriman-Tammany drive to deprive him of the nomination. It never had a chance. But such was the Truman prestige and so much was and is the affection in which he is held, that for a day the thing hung in balance. The cohorts of Sen. Lyndon Johnson hurriedly took plane to Chicago to be on hand just in case there was a deadlock. There was none.

Stevenson himself, erroneously as it turned out, had made compromises to hold the Southern moderates in the party. They did not appreciate it, but callously deserted him. It was only the old-time inertia of the Deep-South, one-party states that enabled him to carry them. He now sees this as a mistake, since the gulf in the Democratic party may not be bridged by compromise.

This has not escaped the attention of the "New Democrats" such as Edmund Brown.

Better Mousetraps

To date, a number of potential candidates who think they are the better mousetrap, have been beating a path to Governor Brown's door. Among these have been Sen. Hubert Humphrey and Sen. John Kennedy. Latest to consult with him have been salesmen vending the mousetrap Stuart Symington, which, they insist, is by far the superior mousetrap. It is, they say, guaranteed to catch the nomination mouse when all the others have failed.

The Symington argument is persuasive.

Most senators make enemies. They cannot avoid it. If they vote on controversial issues they anger those who hold to the other side. If they avoid decision they lose face with all.

But Sen. Symington has really taken firm positions only in favor of national defense. This is as safe from attack as are home and mother. But it does not excite people. Sen. Symington is handsome, able and solid. But he will not cause the ladies to twitter as they view him on TV. Nor will he create any great debate among Democrats. It is unlikely he will appeal to the independent vote which is interested in issues.

The year 1960 will hardly be the one in which the voter will be looking for a compromise candidate. He will want a "take charge" man. None of the current crop of Democrats now quite fills that role.

In 1960 the name Edmund Brown will almost surely be much more important than now.

Rights Bills Pushed Up By Johnson

Floor Action Set For Next Week

By ALBERT RILEY
Constitution Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—Senate Majority Leader Lyndon Johnson set the stage Friday for probable floor action in the Senate next week on civil rights.

Johnson gave the Senate a list of bills on the calendar he said can be motioned up during the remaining days of this session.

Among them were two bills to which Sens. Hennings (D-Mo) and Keating (R-NY) have attached broad civil rights bills as amendments.

McCLELLAN BILL CITED

One is a bill by Sen. McClellan (D-Ark) dealing with legislative jurisdiction on federal lands. This is the bill to which Hennings has attached his civil rights bill.

Another is a House bill to continue acreage allotment exemptions for peanuts grown for boiling. Keating has tacked his own sweeping civil rights bill on this proposal.

When either one of these bills is called up next week, the Senate fight over civil rights will be on, with Southerners threatening a filibuster against the harsh civil rights proposals.

HOUSE MOVE UNLIKELY

Johnson is expected to maneuver a moderate civil rights bill into position, stop a filibuster and get his bill passed and sent over to the House. But with Congress likely to adjourn in two more weeks, no House action is now anticipated this year.

This would place the civil rights issue in a position for House action early next year, and also would give northern radicals more time to seek strengthening amendments.

If all else fails for the civil rights advocates during the remaining days of this session, a simple resolution extending the civil rights commission for two more years probably will be adopted to keep the commission from expiring this year.

OLD GLORY TAKES ON NEW LOOK AS HAWAII BECOMES 50TH STATE
President Eisenhower Unfurls New 50-Star Flag To Proclaim Statehood

49 States Salute New Sister Hawaii

WASHINGTON (AP) — The enchanting Islands of Hawaii became the 50th state Friday and another star was emblazoned on Old Glory.

The 13 strips of red and white remain unchanged as they have for more than a century. But the new field of 50 stars will have nine rows, five with six stars each and four with five stars each. This is in place of the present seven staggered rows of seven stars each adopted when Alaska was welcomed into the Union last January.

The 50-star banner will not become the official flag until next July 4.

PRESIDENT PRESIDES

A 10-minute bit of history, with President Eisenhower presiding in the Cabinet room at the White House, ushered Hawaii into the Union and fixed the design of the new national emblem.

With a dozen pens, which were distributed to dignitaries later as souvenirs, Eisenhower signed a proclamation of statehood for the Pacific Islands of Hawaii and an executive order establishing the design for the flag.

Then, in a little informal speech on what he said was "truly a historic occasion" Eisenhower remarked: "All 49 states will join in welcoming the new one — Hawaii—to this Union. We will wish for her prosperity, security, happiness, and a growing closer relationship with all of the other states.

GOOD LUCK!

"We know that she is ready to do her part to make this Union a stronger nation—a stronger people than it was before because of her presence as a full sister to the other 49 states.

"So all of us say to her, 'good luck.' And to each of her representatives, a very fine tour of service in the public domain. We

It's Romance, Not Votes, Rockefeller Tells Norse

SOGNE, Norway (AP)—Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York arrived in Norway Friday night for the wedding Saturday of his son Steven to Anne Marie Rasmussen and insisted on talking romance, not politics.

With a fatherly kiss for Anne Marie, who was at Kristiansand airport to greet him with her father, Kristian Rasmussen, and Steven, the governor said: "I'm delighted to see you again, my dear."

Anne Marie worked in the Rockefeller home in 1956, first in the kitchen, then as a parlor maid.

Steven took Rasmussen by the hand and drew him through a crowd of newsmen to meet his father. The two fathers shook hands and both grinned.

"I'm very glad to meet you, sir," said the governor.

"Velkommen, velkommen (Welcome, welcome)," Rasmussen replied.

Anne Marie's father, until he retired two years ago, was a grocer and fish merchant on a small island two miles off the mainland of south Norway. Anne Marie's mother, Lovise, a shy, taciturn woman, did not come to the airport.

She was at home getting dinner for the governor, his wife, and their whole family with the Rasmussens in their modest home.

Steven spoke to newsmen after a wedding rehearsal in the white wooden church where the wedding is scheduled to begin Saturday at 4 p.m.—9 a.m. EST. He said he wanted to explain why he felt it necessary to bar photographers from inside the church and had agreed to admit only five correspondents out of nearly 100 who are in Norway to cover the wedding.

Steven's two sisters, Mary, and Mrs. Robert L Pierson, of Evanston, Ill, flew to Norway with their father.

They also embraced Anne Marie and kissed her in the meeting at the airport.

Rockefeller was beaming when he stepped out of the plane. The special flight arrived more than an hour late from Amsterdam.

Practically the first question reporters addressed to him—and of determining if the policewoman, Mrs. Bessie Howell, had overstepped department rules.

Mrs. Howell said she entered the matter at the insistence of the mother of the natural mother, whom she had known over a period of years, and added:

SEES NOTHING WRONG

"There's nothing irregular or shady about this. I think the Welfare Department was caught with its fences down and is out raking up old cases in order to save face."

Mrs. Howell said she referred the mother to a reputable attorney and then attempted to help the daughter.

"I've been trying to help people for the 20 years I have been with the Police Department and I will keep right on doing it," she said. "This baby was placed with a minister and his wife and has a better home than a lot of others that the Welfare Department didn't get excited about."

WANTED GOOD HOME

Mrs. Howell said the natural mother told her she "wanted to find a good Christian home for the baby" and then intended to return to Philadelphia and complete training as a nurse.

"She didn't contact me once during the last two years even to

Arrest Warrants For Clinkscales Are Signed Here

$2,000 Bond Is Posted on 2 Charges

By RICHARD ASHWORTH

The arrest of Jackson Superior Court Judge Maylon B. Clinkscales was ordered Friday as the judge lost the first round of a legal battle against two indictments against him.

Judge Clinkscales, apparently the first Superior Court judge in Georgia to be indicted, lost a battle to keep Fulton Superior Court Judge Virlyn B. Moore from signing bench warrants on charges of barratry and conspiracy to cheat or defraud Jackson County.

Judge Moore signed the warrants for arrest of Judge Clinkscales and Marvin Pierce, Winder attorney, on request of Piedmont Circuit Solicitor General Alfred O. Quillian, who said they were needed to bring the judge to trial.

Some other judge had to sign the warrants, he said, because Judge Clinkscales would be disqualified to act on a case involving himself.

GRANTED INJUNCTION

The barratry indictment grew out of Judge Clinkscales' granting of an injunction last fall to close the City Court of Jefferson. A State Supreme Court decision later reopened the court.

The joint indictment against Pierce and Clinkscales involved a $2,000 fee Pierce received in connection with the sale of $150,000 in hospital and health center bonds. The indictment charged Pierce had nothing to do with the sale.

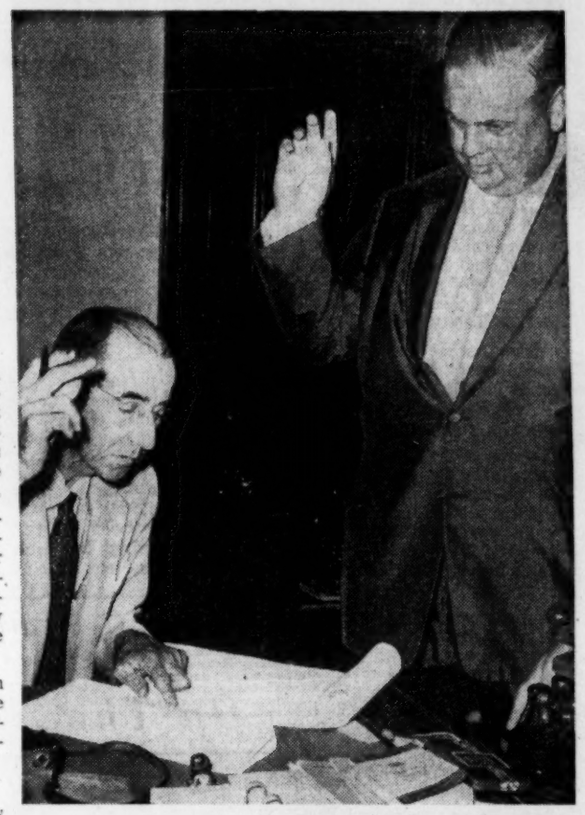

Judge Moore also set bonds of $1,000 each on the charges against Judge Clinkscales and Pierce. Pierce posted a bond with Jackson County Sheriff J. B. Brooks in Jefferson about 3:30 p.m.

ATTORNEY'S OBJECTION

Judge Clinkscales posted bonds totaling $2,000 on the conspiracy and barratry charges.

Clinkscales' counsel, Atlanta attorney Hoke Smith, contended the

Hamilton Promises Records to Board

By BRUCE GALPHIN

State Treasurer George Hamilton declared Friday he is willing to supply any financial records requested by the governor's reorganization commission or its subcommittees.

His statement followed release of a letter from the commission's staff director, M. W. H. Collins, calling information given by Hamilton to him "inadequate."

Collins had asked for a breakdown on the monthly state deposit in some 400 banks. He said Hamilton had supplied only totals.

Hamilton in his statement Friday pointedly failed to promise the information to Collins, who is not himself a member of the reorganization commission.

The treasurer and Collins previously have sparred on other points of the reorganization commission's work.

Hamilton specifically has expressed criticism of the Chicago consulting experts hired by the commission.

Collins had requested the breakdown of bank deposits in connection with the staff's study of the possibility of the state's earning interest on deposits.

The state at present earns no interest on its deposits.

No Monkey Wrenches At Zoo Center, City Says

Is there a "monkey wrench" in Atlanta's new monkey house at the Grant Park zoo?

No, says George Simons, director of the city's parks.

Simons said Friday that the $500,000 monkey palace "is in good shape and "is absolutely safe" for both monkeys and humans and that the city expects to open the primate house to the public Sept. 1.

Simons made that comment in denying a report that the city has refused to accept the building from the contractor until some "safety factors" had been corrected.

"That's not so," said Simons. "There never was a date set for accepting the building, but we're making plans for a formal dedication and opening of the primate house around Sept. 1."

"Main delay right now is in the landscaping," he said.

Simons' remark that the city is happy with the way the mon-

Stock Market Primer

Pick Out a Broker to Fit Your Particular Situation

All of your stock market activities will involve a very important middleman — your broker.

What is a good broker? In the final analysis, he's one who helps you make money in the market.

Seventh of 12 chapters on stock investments by a prominent Wall street and Washington broker, who is also a university instructor in market analysis.

The size of your dividend checks and the growth in value of your holdings are the most specific measures of his performance, so far as you are concerned.

By HARRY KAHN JR.

You should know, however, that there are different types of brokers, and it is important that you pick the type best suited to your requirements.

There is, for example, the broker who is essentially an order taker. He limits himself largely to the mechanical operation of buying and selling stocks for you, with perhaps an occasional bit of advice. He is most valuable to the assured, experienced investor who knows exactly where he wants to put his money and who neither wants nor needs personal guidance.

Another type of broker might be called the "short termer." He's interested mostly in speculation, in the quick profits (and sometimes heady risks) involved in what might be called the in-and-out type of market operation as opposed to long-term investments.

He is not for you if you intend to follow the road to long-term market profits I am marking out for you.

Many brokers, however, offer something more than either the order taker or the short termer. They are advisers as well as technicians and they are willing to share in building your market future. They pride themselves on putting together a balanced portfolio of investments to meet your particular needs.

Brokers of this kind take great

Prince Given Laos Crown, Battles Reds

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—Crown Prince Savang Vathana, 52, has taken over rule of Laos and defense of this tiny nation against a Communist uprising.

His 74-year-old father, King Sisavang, ill with rheumatism, appointed him regent Thursday. He was invested at the gold-spired palace in Luang Prabang.

The Paris-educated prince, who has long represented his father at official functions, was given full powers as monarch, an Information Ministry spokesman said. That means he will act for the king as chief of state, commander in chief of the 25,000-man, U.S.-equipped army, and supreme religious authority of the largely Buddhist Laotian people.

King Sisavang has been ill for several years. He ascended the throne in 1904. Deposed by Laotian revolutionaries, he was returned to power by the French.

Creation of the regency came at a time when infiltrating Communist battalions were threatening an offensive and leaders of Laos' two Communist neighbors, Red China and North Viet Nam, were getting together for an ominous powwow in Peiping.

A Defense Ministry spokesman said the Communist buildup continued, but bad weather was holding up any major moves. The day's fighting was reported limited to a few skirmishes in the rain-sodden jungles near the border of North Viet Nam, which Laos accuses of arming and supplying the raiders.

Radio Peiping announced President Ho Chi Minh of North Viet Nam, en route home from a visit to Moscow, conferred with Red China's President Liu Shao-chi. Premier Chou En-lai sat in. The broadcast gave no hint of what was discussed.

Khrushchev to Face Newsmen on TV

By STEWART HENSLEY

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Soviet Premier Khrushchev will make a major address and engage in a no-holds-barred question and answer session with reporters at the National Press Club here Sept. 16, it was learned Friday.

The entire proceedings will be carried throughout the nation on television and radio by the major networks, who have offered up to two hours air time for the affair.

PLANS WORKED OUT

Arrangements for Khrushchev's first formal meeting with the press were worked out late Friday at meetings of State Department officials with representatives of various press clubs and radio and television executives.

Meanwhile, officials said they expected to release Saturday a skeleton schedule for Khrushchev's 12 day visit, which begins in Washington Sept. 15. The initial schedule was expected to list only the cities he will visit, together with the dates, leaving details to be filled in later.

TO NEW YORK

After three days in Washington, Khrushchev will go to New York where he is scheduled to address the United Nations General Assembly on Sept. 18.

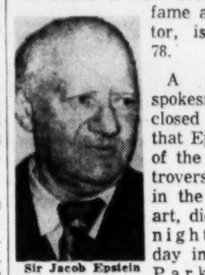

The schedule then calls for him to visit San Francisco, Los Angeles, Des Moines, Iowa and Pittsburgh before returning to Washington about Sept. 27 for a final session of confidential talks with President Eisenhower.

While details of Khrushchev's tour were being worked out, Eisenhower held separate White House conferences with Secretary of State Christian A. Herter and Vice President Richard M. Nixon on his forthcoming visit to Western Europe and later trip to Russia.

The President met first with Herter, Undersecretary of State Robert Murphy and Deputy Undersecretary Livingston T. Merchant to discuss preparations for his Aug. 26 trip to Bonn, London and Paris.

Sculptor Epstein Is Dead at 78

LONDON (AP)—Sir Jacob Epstein, who rose from the East Side slums of New York to world fame as a sculptor, is dead at 78.

Sir Jacob Epstein

A family spokesman disclosed Friday that Epstein, one of the most controversial figures in the annals of art, died at midnight Wednesday in his Hyde Park home across a narrow street from the residence of his friend and fellow artist, Sir Winston Churchill.

The creator of such figures as "Genesis," "Adam," "Eve" and "Ecce Homo"—which led some critics to call him a genius and others a madman — had been in ill health for months.

Coronary thrombosis ended Epstein's long caareer.

Born to two Jewish immigrants in New York in 1880, Epstein came to Europe in his early 20s. He studied in Paris and Rome. In 1906 he chose England for his home. He became a naturalized Briton.

His unorthodox approach to sculpture came to the fore in 1908 in the lumpish figures of a man and woman he executed for a new medical building in London.

Peak Prison Year

LONDON (AP)—British prisons and reformatories were fuller than ever before in the year ended April 30. Prison commissioners reported the daily average number serving time was 26,709 compared with 25,108 the previous year.

Bar Mixing, Judge Asks Pine Bluff

PINE BLUFF, Ark. (UPI)—Associate Justice Jim Johnson of Arkansas Supreme Court told a state - wide segregationist rally Friday night to "do what needs to be done" to prevent integration of the Dollarway school district next month.

"The eyes of Arkansas are on you," Johnson, a staunch segregationist, said.

"I'm not going to stand here and tell you what needs to be done. We are depending on you —you know what needs to be done, and we know you will see the heritage that needs to be passed on to your children will be," Johnson said.

Caravans from south and east Arkansas arrived at the rally at Hestand Stadium Friday night to help white residents of the school district just outside Pine Bluff protest desegregation.

A petition presented to Gov. Orval Faubus Thursday asked him to use "all force at your command" to prevent "illegal federal court orders" which are forcing the district to accept three Negro children in the formerly all-white school Sept. 8.

Amis Guthridge, attorney for the Capital Citizens Council in Little Rock, also spoke to the crowd of about 1,000 persons.

McElroy Prohibits Gen. Powers' Book

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Secretary of Defense McElroy disclosed Friday he had barred publication of a book by Gen. Thomas S. Power on the Strategic Air Command that was billed in advance as sure to be "argued about."

McElroy held that publication would be "inappropriate" while Power was on active duty as commander of SAC.

Power outlined in his manuscript the role of the big bomber force in preventing war. He raised possibly controversial questions about future command changes needed in the nation's strategic striking forces.

The House Subcommittee on Government Information, headed by Rep. John E. Moss (D-Calif), immediately began a staff investigation of the circumstances surrounding McElroy's order.

The unofficial but authoritative Army-Navy-Air Force Journal said in its issue Friday there had been reports that McElroy was "banning expression of views on controversial subjects in books by officers on active duty." It said the order would have far-reaching consequences.

Random House, publisher of Power's book, which was to be entitled "Design for Survival," had distributed literature stating that it would be published in the fall and would be "widely discussed and argued about."

The Defense Department was asked why publication of the book was halted in view of the fact that many admirals and generals had published books. The department issued this official statement: "Approval to publish at this time was denied on the grounds it was inappropriate for a commander of a major command to author a book concerning his area of responsibility while on active duty in that command."

2 Negroes Lose Voting In Memphis

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—An unprecedented 73 per cent of Memphis' registered white voters cast ballots in Thursday's election smashing a strong bid by Negroes to win a City Commission seat and judgeship.

The top Negro candidate, Russell B. Sugarmon Jr., received enough votes to win past elections but this time the mass turnout of whites snowed him under.

Sugarmon, former Rutgers football player and Harvard Law School graduate, ran second in the five-man race for public works commissioner. He polled 35,268 votes to William Farris' 58,964.

A total of 130,276 votes was cast, shattering the previous record of 86,370 counted in the 1955 city election. Of the registered 57,109 Negroes, an estimated 62 per cent voted.

Another Negro candidate, the Rev. Ben L. Hooks, had been conceded a fair chance to win the race for Juvenile Court Judge. He finished about 21,000 votes behind incumbent Judge Elizabeth McCaain. Two other white candidates trailed Hooks.

Food Prices Dip Slightly In Atlanta

Retail food prices in Atlanta dipped almost imperceptably last month after making a slight advance in June, and remained somewhat lower than a year ago, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported Friday.

Reflecting lower prices for most major foods except eggs, which were seven cents a dozen higher than in June, the retail food price index for Atlanta declined a tenth of one per cent in July to a level of 117.0 (1947-49 equals 100). This was 1.8 per cent below a year ago.

The bureau's regional director, Brunswick A. Bagdon, said, "It is significant that Atlanta was the only large index city to report lower food prices during this period. He said other major cities reported July food prices up 0.4 to 0.8 per cent over June.

Living Costs Rise To All-Time High

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government's cost of living index in July edged up to a new peak, 124.9 per cent of the 1947-49 average.

In other words, the government figures it took about $12.50 last month for a consumer to buy what $10 would have bought in the base period.

The July level, the Labor Department said in its monthly report Friday, was up three-tenths of one per cent from June and eight-tenths of one per cent above July 1958.

Food price increases led the way in the climb from June, the department said, but all major classes of goods and services played a part.

Food prices usually climb in July, going up four-tenths of one per cent this time. Eggs, which have been plentiful and comparatively cheap, jumped 18 per cent.

Hersey E. Riley, chief of the department's division of prices and cost of living, attributed the June-to-July increase largely to seasonal factors. But he said about one-fourth of the total increase could be laid to local tax increases. He cited higher sales taxes in Illinois and Arizona for example and boosts elsewhere in local taxes on cigarettes and restaurant meals.

"We are quite certain," Riley said, "that food prices will drop in August but we can't tell just how that will affect the entire cost of living index."

R. J. Reynolds Seeks Divorce From Wife No. 3

DARIEN (AP)—Tobacco millionaire Richard J. Reynolds' third marriage was on the rocks Friday after seven years.

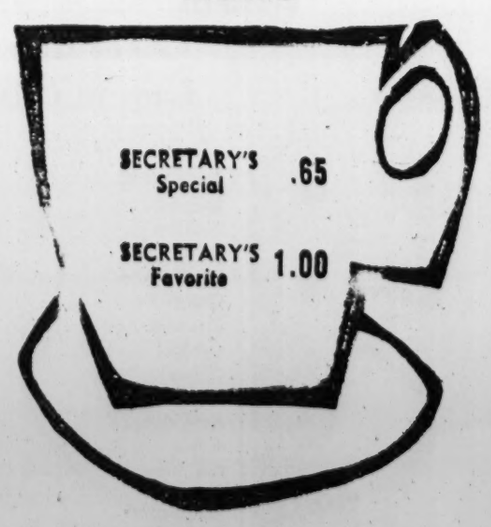

Reynolds who lives on his own island, Sapelo, off the Georgia coast here, filed suit for divorce in McIntosh County Superior Court. He charged mental cruelty.

His wife, the former Muriel Marston of Toronto, Canada, was reported in Paris when the suit was filed late Thursday. Their estrangement began in recent months.

Now Is No Time To Drop Our Guard

While Khrushchev makes plans for his visit to the United States and Soviet diplomats make extraordinarily friendly gestures, events in the Far East warn us that any relaxation of our determination, vigilance and strength would be foolhardy indeed.

The heat temporarily is off West Berlin. But there have been no real moves by Moscow to settle the basic causes of tension in Europe. And while the Reds play a waiting game in the Middle East, their agents are busily stirring up trouble.

But in Southeast Asia, Red China—through its puppet, North Viet Nam—has launched what may be a full-scale attempt to destroy the independence of the little kingdom of Laos in Indochina. Peiping issues menacing noises at the United States and the United Nations for even considering help to that beleaguered country.

Elsewhere along the Red Chinese borders infiltration of neighboring states and military pressure mount. This includes the Indian border state of Ladak. Nepal is fearful. South Asian countries are moving belatedly to remove Communist elements from their governments.

All of this, of course, brings in focus the report issued Thursday by the 10-man committee of leading citizens headed by former Assistant Army Secretary Draper on foreign military aid. The committee warned flatly that Communist aggressive aims and methods have not changed and that we cannot cope with them unless the free world remains strong.

After a nine-month study, the committee concludes that Russia still is bent on controlling the world. It is growing faster in economic power than the United States. It points out further that the free world can survive only if it has unity and is dedicated to hard and constructive work and thought instead of searching solely for comfort and leisure.

The report follows cuts in President Eisenhower's minimum request for foreign economic and military aid by Congress in the amount of 800 million dollars, 300 millions of it in the military field. The request for $3,900,000,000 has been trimmed to $3,100,000,000 and yet the committee says that the President's request was 400 million dollars too low.

Foreign aid in some cases may have been badly administered. But it has been established rather well that foreign military aid buys more defense at cheaper cost. In this global struggle, too, our defense frontiers are wherever the Communists attempt to nibble off their small neighbors.

We trust the Senate will restore these foreign aid cuts to at least the minimum the President requested.

Community With Vision Plans Recreation, Too

Only a selfish, short-sighted city concentrates on the payroll alone.

Planning with good sense and vision includes the play role. And culture.

So we are gratified to know of the plans to develop Piedmont Park as a botanical center and Grant Park as a zoo.

We like the Southeastern Fair Board's master plan that would make Lakewood Park a Georgia educational-recreation center. The plan is a bold concept.

As Greater Atlanta prepares to mark the attainment of one million population, it is good to know that look-ahead is not just crassly commercial and industrial.

Adequate facilities for culture and recreation are a vital part of the complete community.

India, Pakistan Agree And Both Will Profit

United Nations failures make news. Its successes rarely do. The present success is a major one, of vast importance to peace. It is not merely a U.N. achievement. In its immediate application the World Bank and its genius director, Eugene Black, play the big role. But it was the U.N. which for years held off war until tempers and the fires of nationalism could cool.

India and Pakistan, at each other's throats since the creation of both nations after the second world war, have essentially agreed on joint development of the Indus River, so vital to both. The final agreement will be signed some months from now in London.

The plan finally accepted was worked out by the World Bank. The United States, Britain, Australia, New Zealand, and, if the cold war eases, West Germany, will all join in financing, on a repayment basis, the new irrigation network. It is a story of great magnitude.

The Indus and its tributaries have a flow twice that of the Nile and three times that of the Tigris and Euphrates rivers combined. The lives and welfare of millions of persons are involved since they live on either side of the watershed.

Here we have a symbol of what can be done by men and nations working together. The U.N. held the day until the bank could go to work. It has demonstrated a bit of common sense. It was better to make this natural resource more available to both than to divide it and not have enough for either.

The Early County News Looks Over Its Shoulder

The Early County News this week can look with pride over its shoulder at the past 100 years. For this weekly published by two brothers, Alvan T. and W. Hoyle Fleming, is celebrating its 100th anniversary.

The News has remained in continuous publication since 1859 despite the War Between the States, the Spanish-American War, two world wars and the Korean conflict. It has the distinction of being the oldest business establishment in Early County.

The southwest Georgia community of Blakely has reason to be proud of this record of continuous service to the people.

Congratulations to the Early County News and good luck to it during the next 100-year journey through time.

Staggered-Hours Plan Deserves Consideration

The Savannah Transit Co., like so many of its contemporaries across the nation, is experiencing financial difficulties.

As a result there is a move toward joint Savannah-Chatham County ownership of the facility. This, too, parallels courses of action taken under similar circumstances elsewhere.

Such steps reflect widespread recognition of urban communities' dependence upon mass transit as an economic necessity and as the most logical means of preventing downtown streets from becoming hopelessly clogged with automobiles.

In this connection a major problem in Atlanta and other major cities is the inconsistency of the volume of traffic.

During the early morning and late afternoon rush periods streets are jammed with vehicles and trolleys are carrying peak loads. Shortly after each such period there are a marked decline in traffic and a decided drop in the number of trolley passengers. This makes for uneconomic under-utilization of facilities.

Perhaps the time is ripe, as suggested in a recent issue of the Central Atlanta Assn. Newsletter, for business concerns to consider a staggered-hours plan similar to that which proved successful in the war years of 1942-43.

New York City recently began a survey to determine the potential benefits of staggered working hours. Findings from the study should be watched with interest in Atlanta, which often is referred to as the "New York of the South."

Watch Out for Boom In Dark Glasses Sales

If word of this gets around it may help the dark glasses business.

A British eye surgeon, writing in a scientific journal, says that the reason many women wear dark glasses is to hide the signs of aging, such as wrinkles around the eyes, drooping of the eyelids and sinking of the eyeballs.

This may be. There are also those in the U.S.A. who think wearing of glasses provides a Hollywood look of distinction. We also know a man who habitually wears them when invited out to dinner so that he can take undetected naps if the after-dinner conversation grows boring.

But if dark glasses do hide the cruel signs of aging, there is bound to be a boom in the business.

Pretty Tall Girls To Be Toast of Atlanta in '60

Atlanta has the prettiest girls in the world. It also has the prettiest tall girls in the world.

Therefore, it is exciting to learn that the Atlanta Sky-Hi Club will be host to the national convention of the American Affiliation of Tall Clubs in 1960.

It will be a treat to see some of the tallest girls in the country together when a Miss Tall America is chosen.

We look forward to looking up to what we are sure will be the prettiest group of the tallest girls in the country.

Arkansan Says We Need to Keep in Mind Khrushchev's Motives While in America

Searcy, Ark. — During Khrushchev's visit, Americans need to keep in mind just who he is and what he wants. First, he is a dedicated Communist. This means that he believes that he must work for the destruction of our way of life and the conquest of the world by communism. Second, he is utterly without any moral principles. He had to be a ruthless brute to rise under Stalin.

Third, he wants us to relax tension in the midst of this cold war which the Communists have launched and which they would like for us to think is over so that it will hasten the day when it will be all over for us.

Fourth, he would like trade in those things which will help contribute to the strengthening of his country for world conquest.

Fifth, he would even like for us to finance this trade.

In other words, he comes to conduct psychological warfare, to try to create a public opinion which will undermine our foreign policy and our efforts to stop the spread of communism.

While he speaks of ending the cold war, his fellow workers are fighting in Laos in an effort to conquer that country.

'Alcoholic Must First Believe in Himself'

Atlanta—When I said in the letter printed on Aug. 5th that Dr. McClain has little understanding of many alcoholics' delimma about religion I did not mean to give the impression that I thought religion was not an integral part of the alcoholic's recovery program. I do. I feel that trust and faith in God are important factors in continuing sobriety. But belief with no sense of personal worth is not belief to me. It is shallow and it is nothing but lip service. How could I accept a Being as all encompassing as God when I could not even accept myself? How could I feel that God loved me when I did not even like myself?

This is why I so strongly dispute Dr. McClain's statement that "all the clinics will not help the alcoholic as much as giving himself to God." I feel that we who are alcoholics can never come to an understanding with God until we can start to understand and accept ourselves.

It is written in the Bible, "Love thy neighbor as thyself." To me this means I can only love my neighbor if I respect myself. This I believe is how the Georgian Clinic has helped me and so many others to learn to accept ourselves and then later to accept God's love.

'Little Rock Needed Hands-Off Policy'

Atlanta—In reference to your editorial of Aug. 13 entitled, "Left Alone Little Rock Can Solve Its Problems," I believe had Little Rock been left alone its citizens would have solved its problems and its schools would now be segregated as the majority of the people of that community desire.

The "humiliation for Little Rock" that your editorial mentions is the spectacle of its citizens having been browbeaten into accepting the unconstitutional edict of the present members of the Supreme Court.

Atlantan Criticizes Jailing of Mother

Atlanta — I can only assume the quotation "The law is an ass" to mean the law is stupid, if not what is the significance of this expression? I have been reading in the papers about an unfortunate Atlanta woman having to give her children away as she had no way of caring for them, and that she sought aid from charitable organizations and was turned away. Personally I think the jailing of this unfortunate woman is worse then criminal. There has been some criticism of this unfortunate woman, which is most unjust. If she had no way of feeding her children what was she to do, let them starve and be guilty of murder? How could she work, if able to hold down a job, and look after caring for the children at home at the same time?

Schools Should Require Enforced Salk Shot Clinics

Salk shots should be required of every child of school age. An increasing number of counties in Georgia are making the anti-polio vaccine mandatory in pre-school clinics. Every school system in the state's 159 counties should do so.

If parents are too careless, ignorant or malicious to see that their children receive the miraculous protection the Salk shots afford, the schools should require the shots for the protection of the student body in general.

Salk vaccine is not 100 per cent effective. But it is a powerful aid in warding off polio and in reducing the crippling or killing power of the disease when it does strike.

Children who have not had the vaccine obviously, therefore, present a menace to other youngsters when epidemics strike. Society has a right to protect innocent ones who may be hurt by the failure of someone else to receive the shots.

It is nothing short of astonishing that school systems throughout the land did not set up anti-polio shot requirements as soon as the vaccine was pronounced safe and effective.

What's the holdup? Why are smallpox vaccinations required, for instance, and the mighty weapon against crippling polio ignored?

Happily, more and more counties are awaking to their responsibilities—and to their opportunities—to protect the children.

A recent survey conducted by the Southwest Georgia Area of the National Foundation found that 15 out of the 40 counties in the area require Salk shots in pre-school clinics. The 15 include Calhoun, Dodge, Early, Grady, Harris, Houston, Macon, Marion, Mitchell, Muscogee, Sumter, Taylor, Terrell, Turner and Wilcox counties.

We congratulate these forward-looking counties. May their number increase.

Arrangements are being made now for opening of schools. Polio is raging in some sections of the country. Now is the time to act to help keep an epidemic away from your school and your child.

Souvenir Ready On the 'Chase'

The Louisville & Nashville Railroad has put together a neat pocket-size book on "The Great Locomotive Chase," available to you by your asking, with the road's compliments. The book presents pictures and chronology of the Texas and the General, a map and a running story on Andrews Raid and a picture taken at the last reunion of the participants, both sides. That last get-together was in September 1906 in Chattanooga with seven men attending. The first reunion had been in Ohio 20 years earlier with even Conductor Wm. A. Fuller of Atlanta among those present and reminiscing.

Send Your Prayer Heavenward Daily

For the scientist, to believe that atomic power exists is not all that is necessary. He must find the proper technique to release that power. It is not enough for the Christian to believe in the power of God. He must learn the techniques of gaining that power.

Jesus gives us many. For example He says, "If ye abide in Me, and My words abide in you, ye shall ask what ye will, and it shall be done unto you." (John 15:7).

But before you ask, you must meet the condition of that "if," which is to "abide" in Christ.

Once two men were out fishing. A storm came up and it seemed their small boat would sink. One man began to pray. He said, "Lord, I have not asked You for anything for 15 years and if You will save us from this storm, I will not bother You again for another 15 years."

We smile at that story yet that is the practice of a lot of us.

One way to take hold of this marvelous power for life is to abide in Christ. What does it mean to abide? To abide means to live with, to settle down, to remain. It is not a hit-and-run matter, it is a long-term word. Henry Drummond, a great spiritual genius, once said: "Ten minutes every day in the company of Christ, aye, two minutes thus spent every day, will make your whole life different."

People have told me they have prayed all night. I have never done that. An ordinary human mind is incapable of such sustained concentration. I doubt if many people could really pray for one hour. Henry Drummond first said 10 minutes but quickly changed it to two minutes a day. To spend even two minutes consciously and determinedly in the presence of Christ is a very difficult task. The mind wanders before we realize it.

One way you can abide in Christ, even for two minutes, is to form mental pictures of Him. If you are conscious of your sins, read John 8:3-11, the story of Christ forgiving the woman, until every detail of that scene is clear and sharp in your thinking.

As you read and study the four Gospels you develop in your mind a library of mental pictures of His life and you show them on the screen of your mind. In that way Christ becomes very real to you. He actually becomes a part of you.

James Stalker in his Imago Christi wrote: "A wise man once said to me that he was too busy to be in a hurry."

Take two minutes a day in complete concentration with Christ. You will begin to see a marvelous miracle happen within you.

Roscoe Drummond

Labor Bill Fate Hangs in Balance

WASHINGTON—It is still too soon to say the public has won its victory for a labor reform law despite the fact that both Senate and House have acted favorably. Because there are now two versions of the same legislation with appreciable differences between them, these two bills must go before a House-Senate conference to be reconciled, merged or diluted.

Two things can happen:

Either the Senate, which passed almost unanimously the less ambitious Kennedy-Ervin Bill, will accept a substantial part of the stronger provisions of the House's Landrum-Griffin Bill;

Or the conference and the House and Senate will let themselves get into an irreconcilable wrangle resulting in no compromise, no legislation, nothing.

In the wake of the mounting disclosures of the McClellan Committee on how racketeering and corruption have bludgeoned their way into too many unions and in face of an alerted public opinion which, if much longer frustrated, may well demand sterner measures, it would seem to me, egregiously unwise and harmful to the country, to labor and to both parties to let labor reform law go down the drain of an election-minded political stalemate.

The argument which the Democratic congressional leaders used against the House Republicans only a week ago is now equally applicable to the new and unexpected position in which they find themselves.

You may remember that the Democratic contention was that the Republicans, under the whiplash leadership of House Minority Leader Charles Halleck, was implacably and partisanly intent upon an all-or-nothing strategy.

Well, the administration bill is now the majority will of the House, passed by the decisive vote of 305 to 125, and it is certainly pertinent to ask of the Democratic leaders, who did not want the Landrum-Griffin version, whether they are going to take the position which they recently accused Halleck of taking or whether they are going to take their own advice. In other words, are Speaker Sam Rayburn and Sen. Lyndon Johnson, now denied the kind of labor bill they most wanted in the House, going to yield to the strategy they condemned and say to their followers: Since we can't have our way, let's block the way to any bill. Or will they act to thwart their own extremists and help bring about a constructive compromise?

It would be my judgment that the labor reform bill which passed the House reflects not only the majority will of Congress but the majority will of the country. I doubt if many, but the irrevocably committed, will be impressed by the epithets—like "punitive" and "anti-labor"—thrown at the Landrum-Griffin bill by some union leaders.

Big labor has shown that it needs some regulation just as big business showed it needed some regulation a quarter-century ago. Now is the time to do it.

Sight of Professor Causes Near Panic

When an alleged writer encounters his old English teacher, sure-enough and bona fide, there arises after the first flush of meeting a situation touched with elements of panic. The mind revolves and flips. Hundreds of written words come cascading across the consciousness. There is a gerund-searching, participle-hunting, adverb-studying review of sentences.

Subordinate clauses flit and fade. The indicative mood, active voice moans hauntingly in the background.

What about tense? And is the transitional phrase exactly the one needed? How about case and agreement? Declension, ellipsis, gender, noun clauses, antecedents, substantives, adjectives, verbs—all those things which are grammar rush about in the mind trying wildly to settle in their proper places.

"How are you, sir; it is I, sir."

There is more flipping. "I, sir?" . . . that sounds silly. Who, whom, huh!

Finally the vocal cords stop shaking and the nonrestrictive modifiers look around and see the syntax is the same old syntax. The sun is shining still. Still? The sun is shining still? Should that be "stilly"? No, stilly, that's silly. There's no such word as stilly.

"How are you, sir? It is I, sir, your old student, sir."

Who? Whom? What? Why? Where? When?

"Yessir, I'm getting along fine, sir." Fine, sir? Or would it have been better to have said splendidly, sir? That would have made the sentence sound better. Fine, sir.

"Yessir, I'm mighty glad you're reading my column, sir." Mighty glad? Gosh, that sounds awful. Awful? That sounds awful, "Yessir, I'm extremely pleased you're reading my column, sir."

David W. Johnston, retired professor of literature and composition at the old Atlanta Division of the University of Georgia (now Georgia State) regarded me benignly. (Benignly, is that the word? Maybe "with tolerance" would be better.)

Professor Johnston retired this summer from the staff at Georgia State. He is a wonderful person. I told him I appreciated all that he had taught me. Later I got to thinking maybe I shouldn't have put that responsibility on him, but he was very polite. And he said I was doing all right (all right is two words; it is not written "alright.") Professor, sir, if you were here right now while I am writing this, I'd ask you where to put the period at the end of that parenthesis.

Professor Johnston appeared to be in splendid health, capable of reaching out and snatching an infinitive - splitter baldheaded. (He never did such things as that; he is a kind and gentle man.)

Thousands of students through the years have gained from him appreciation of the masterpieces of literature. Souls have been touched and even set ablaze.

Seeing him again was a thrill.

A thrill? No, that will never do. It was a rewarding experience.

29 Alcohol Citations 'Surprise' Albany

Constitution State News Service

ALBANY — Mayor Jim Porter Watkins and the Albany police commission expressed surprise here Friday at the citations State Revenue Commissioner Dixon Oxford issued Thursday against 29 local liquor and beer retailers.

Watkins said, "We were not consulted by Mr. Oxford, nor was our police chief, about citations in Albany and Dougherty County. If things were as much amiss as indicated by Mr. Oxford, we certainly would have liked to know about it, and you can rest assured that appropriate local action would have been taken."

Mayor pro tem Donald Wakeford, chairman of the police commission, said the citations had not been served on the alleged offenders, and came at a time when a concentrated local effort was being exerted to regulate the sale of alcoholic beverages.

"We prefer to regulate such matters on a cooperative basis rather than have a bombshell of accusations from the outside without consultation with any of our local authorities," he declared.

The police commissioner said he thought local authorities were entitled to any evidence the state might have concerning local people.

Albany Police Chief Laurie Pritchett said he talked to revenue commissioner Oxford on the telephone Friday, but did not find out what the alleged violations contained.

Hearings on the citations are scheduled in Atlanta Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of next week.

Hapeville's Officials to Face Court

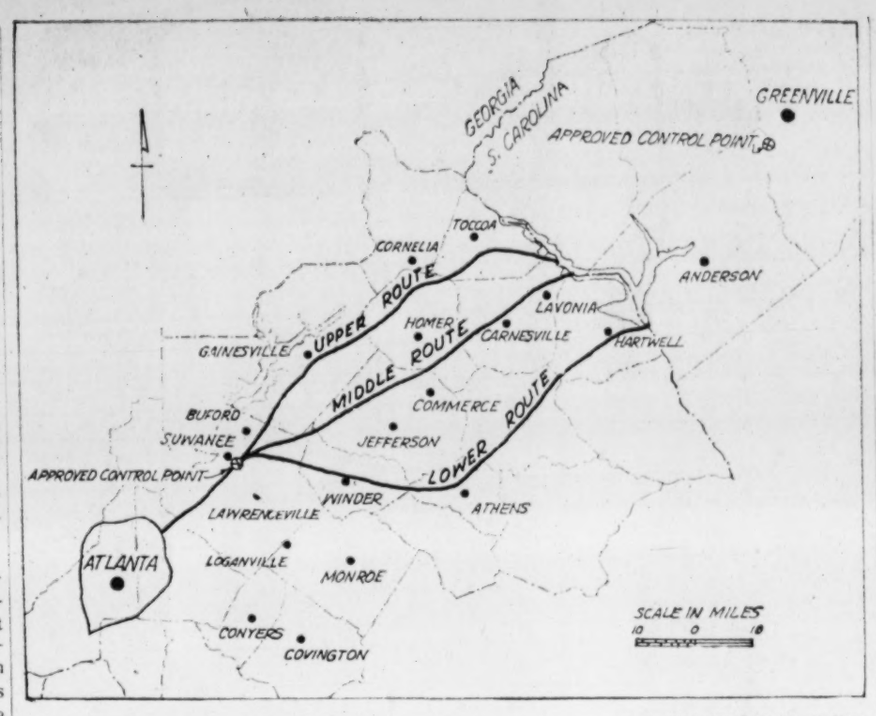

Hapeville city officials Friday were ordered to show cause why they should not be cited for contempt of court in making a case against a barbecue stand operator for selling beer without a license.

Hearing on the order issued by Judge Jeptha C. Tanksley was set at 9:30 a.m. Sept. 11. The order was issued against Mayor E. E. Dixon Jr., alderman-at-large John R. Barrow and councilmen C. C. Martin, Jerre Williams and Frank Coggin.

The drive-in barbecue business operator, J. L. Mobley, obtained a temporary injunction in July restraining the city from interfering with sale of beer.

Judge Tanksley Monday ruled that the city officials exceeded their discretion in suspending retail sales of beer on the basis of a straw vote of citizens, and issued an injunction to prevent the city from closing the stand, prosecuting him in police court or for otherwise interfering with the legal sale of beer.

Police Chief G. B. Pearson Thursday made a case against Mobley for selling beer without a license.

Thief Snatched $775 from Him, Salesman Says

John A. Yarbrough of 145 Macon Terr., SW, an automobile supply company salesman, told police a snatch thief took $775 from him at a service station on McDaniel street, SW Friday.

A youthful Negro grabbed his pocketbook which was attached to his belt by a chain and broke the chain, Yarbrough said. The pocketbook contained $175 personal money and $600 which belonged to the company, Yarbrough said.

C of C Road Charges Hit By Toccoa's Rep. Gross

Stephens County Rep. Frank Gross Friday said charges leveled by the local chamber of commerce in connection with a dispute over the location of the Atlanta-Greenville interstate do not represent the sentiment of the people of the county.

The Toccoa-Stephens County Chamber of Commerce had accused Gov. Vandiver, Highway Board member Willis Harden and their families with moving the proposed route further south to enhance value of their own property.

"Although the people of Stephens County are disappointed," Gross wrote, the accusations do "not express the feeling or attitudes of the people of Stephens County.

"I am informed," he continued, "that this action was taken by a group of less than 30 people. Neither the commissioners of roads and revenues of Stephens County, the city commissioners of the City of Toccoa, nor myself were given a copy of this report.

"The citizens of Stephens County regret such insinuations. Stephens County gave Ernest Vandiver in September of last year an overwhelming majority in his race for governor. We believed in him then and we believe in him now," Gross concluded.

Meanwhile Friday the Highway department released a map showing the "upper route" approved during the Griffin administration; the "middle route" now favored by the Vandiver administration; and the "lower route" near Athens, which is no longer being considered.

Vandiver and highway officials continued to assert Friday that the shorter middle route will cost at least $10 million less to build than the Gainesville-Toccoa route.

Woman's Trial Set in Gray Death

Trial of Mrs. Loraine Stanga of Atlanta in the slaying of Virgil Glen Gray, Lawrenceville mortician, is expected to be held early in September in Polk County Superior Court at Cedartown. Solicitor Dan Winn said her case "will appear on the criminal calendar" which will be heard beginning Aug. 31.

Mrs. Stanga and William Hoyt Ledford were accused of the slaying of Gray near Cedartown and of leaving the body in a mountainous area in Arkansas.

Ledford was sentenced to death following a three-day trial. The hearing date for an appeal motion by Ledford will probably be set within the next two weeks, according to Forest Hagan, clerk of Polk Superior Court.

REA Okays 2 Loans

A Georgia telephone company and an electric cooperative have received REA approval of loans totaling $628,000.

The Nelson-Ball Ground Telephone Co. at Ball Ground got approval of a $430,000 loan to furnish initial service to 939 subscribers in an expanded area. A total of $198,000 was approved for the Lamar Electric Membership Corp. at Barnesville to finance construction of 70 miles of distribution lines to serve 250 new rural customers.

Find Airman's Body

The body of a Savannah airman missing in the Yukon River in Alaska since July 6 was recovered this week. The Air Force identified him as S.Sgt. Smiley D. Griffin Jr., 23.

Officials at Ladd Air Force Base in Fairbanks said Griffin drowned when a boat in which he was riding capsized during a trip from an aircraft control warning site to a Yukon River native village 230 miles west of Fairbanks.

Forest Park Mayor Must Face Court

Forest Park Mayor L. D. Strietelmeir has been ordered to appear before Clayton County Superior Court Judge William R. Reynolds Sept. 1 to show cause why he should not be cited for contempt.

The order, served Friday morning, relates to a previous order enjoining the mayor from using Rex T. Reeves as city attorney. The injunction followed an action by the city council Aug. 3, voting that the attorney be removed. Strietelmeier vetoed the measure, and a 5-2 vote overriding the mayor was held illegal by him.

A Forest Park weekly newspaper editor, Anthony Gray, was arrested Friday night on a criminal warrant issued by Clayton Justice of the Peace G. P. McMullen, charging Gray with "assault with a deadly weapon" on Councilman Lynn Wells Thursday.

Gray has been named by Wells and Mayor Strietelmeir as one of the people responsible for attempts to get Reeves out of office and to impeach the mayor.

3 Tobacco Marts End 1959 Sales

Final sales at three markets closed the season Friday on the Georgia-Florida flue-cured tobacco belt.

Statesboro, Tifton and Vidalia closed. The Claxton market held its final sale Thursday.

Reported gross sales and averages by markets for Thursday and the season follow. All figures are unofficial and do not reflect price levels by grades.

Claxton 66,176 pounds at $49.35, season 6,359,514 for average of $56.77; Statesboro 276,950 at 46.81 and 15,310,280 at 56.67; Tifton 102,783 at 35.54 and 9,197,766 at 56.72; Vidalia 81,944 at 42.82 and 11,012,058 at 54.97.

Total Georgia 527,853 pounds at an average of $44.90 for $236,997, season 141,378,037 at $57.79 for a total $81,697,775. Season total for belt 160,042,613 pounds at $57.90 for $82,667,535.

Mrs. Burton Granted Hearing by Governor

Mrs. Margaret L. Burton has been granted a governor's extradition hearing on her fight against being returned to California to face grand theft charges there.

Assistant Attorney General Henry G. Neal said the hearing will be held before him at 10 a.m. Sept. 17 on extradition proceedings brought by Los Angeles County, Calif., authorities.

Because of the governor's hearing, a Friday hearing for Mrs. Burton in Fulton Superior Court was postponed. If Mrs. Burton is ordered returned to California, she can appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court.

The Friday hearing was set by Superior Court Judge Claude D. Shaw Aug. 7 when Mrs. Burton was returned here after serving an 18 months prison term on a conviction of embezzling $186,000 from a Decatur medical clinic.

Los Angeles authorities want the 52-year-old gray-haired woman, known here under the name of Mrs. Janet Gray, for trial on a Sept. 15, 1952, indictment charging her with the theft of more than $9,000 from two women.

Meanwhile, William N. Owens, district director of immigration and naturalization, said deportation proceedings have been completed to send Mrs. Burton back to England because she is still a British subject. But action on deportation will await disposition of charges against her in this country, Owens said.

Mrs. Burton has indicated her willingness to return to England.

Oxford Calls Liquor Cases For Tuesday

Possibly sensational testimony on "red" liquor operations in dry counties could develop at hearings scheduled for next Tuesday by Revenue Commissioner Dixon Oxford.

The commissioner has cited five Atlanta retail liquor dealers to show cause why they should not lose their licenses for allegedly illegal sales operations.

None of the citations specifically charges the dealers with sales destined for dry counties.

But all five are accused of selling or transporting in considerably larger quantities than the legal two-quarts-per-customer.

Agents report seizing 74 cases of whiskey in a truck at one of the cited stores, Ponce de Leon Liquor Store, 266 Ponce de Leon Ave., NE.

Other stores whose licensees have been cited to appear Tuesday are: City Liquor Store, 291 Ferrest Ave., NE, charged with three violations; Red Circle Liquor Store, 774 Marietta St., NW, three violations; Service Liquor Store, 74 Elliott St., SW, two violations; Simon's Liquor Store, 283 Peters St., SW, two violations.

Navy, AF Join Philippine Hunt For 100 on Ship

MANILA (UPI)—The Navy and Air Force Saturday joined the extensive search for survivors of the sinking of the inter-island Pilar II, which capsized off Palawan Island in the southwestern Philippines with at least 100 persons aboard.

Eleven persons were reported rescued by fishing boats but it was feared at least 90 and perhaps more had drowned. The 241-ton ship capsized Thursday in high winds generated by Typhoon Iris.

Choose Broker To Fit Your Particular Needs

pleasure in the number of small investors whose way of life they have improved.

In their less modest moments they like to talk about the woman customer who can go to Florida every winter on the income from her investments, or about the parents who may not have to worry about their children's education because their stock holdings provide some hedge against the rising cost of college.

They enjoy being conservative for a widow dependent on investment income, or working out some more exciting ventures for the younger man with a good income who can set a bit aside each month and take a risk on it.

A good broker needs many sterling qualities — patience, sympathy, intelligence, a good background in economics or business. Most of all he needs that market instinct that helps him spot a change in a company's position, an impending boom in a dormant industry, an important shift in the general economy.

COMPANIES TESTED

The modern broker may well be a trained economic analyst, possibly a member of his city's society of investment analysts. Membership in such a society is a very valuable asset for any broker. Frequently these organizations meet with officers of companies in which their members and their customers are interested and put these officers through searching examination:

What is the company's financial position? How is it doing competitively? What is the sales volume? What about research, expansion plans, new products? These sessions produce a steady stream of helpful information for the participating brokers, information which they can use to the benefit of their customers.

I don't mean to imply by all this that a broker — any broker — is infallible. There's a common saying that over the years a broker gets to know less and less about more and more. New stocks are constantly coming on the market, and the volume of stocks is so great that no broker can know about them all. And, like all other humans, he is not above error.

I recall one blooper I pulled soon after I came back into the brokerage business after my tour of duty in the government. In the summer of '1953, I told some of my customers that the auto industry was in for tough times and that they should get out of General Motors. I suggested the money might better be put into a tobacco stock with a high yield.

About a month later the lung cancer scare broke, and tobacco stocks broke too. Meanwhile, GM climbed steadily. I had told my customers to drop a stock that went up 200 per cent and to buy one that went down 20 per cent.

The type of broker I've devoted most of this discussion to will take over almost completely for the customer who is willing to devote a minimum amount of time and effort to his own investment.

But he also has a function—and a vital one—in the market activities of the kind of investor I hope you'll be when you finish reading these articles — that is, the investor who does his own brainwork, who knows the basic tools and uses them, who gets a kick out of building his own financial structure.

For that investor the good broker serves as a source of leads, an experienced guide, and a backstop against errors.

The good broker does much of the same sort of thinking that I have been writing about. And that old saw about two heads being better than one is especially true in the market. No matter how careful and intelligent the investor may be, before he is long in the market he is likely to have reason to be thankful for the backstop the broker provided.

On occasion you may need the broker's reassurance that "yes, your reasoning and arithmetic are correct and you've obviously made a good choice."

Or, most valuable of all, the broker may have reason to say, "That all sounds very well, but you forgot this factor and this one, and when you add them in, the whole project has a very unhealthy smell."

Thus the customer and the broker can engage in very effective teamwork—teamwork which is pleasurable and profitable to the investor and—I can testify—to the broker.

NEW INVESTOR

A question frequently confronting the new investor is this: "Shall I go to a small, independent broker or to one of the big brokerage houses?"

Each of these types of brokers has advantages, and it is pretty much a matter of personal preference once those advantages are weighed. It is important, of course, that whomever you decide to do business with—an independent or one of the brokers in a big house—should be personally satisfactory to you. Over the years you will find that the broker-customer relationship is a fairly close one, and it must be based on full confidence and a certain amount of rapport.

A basic advantage of the big brokerage house with a membership on a major exchange—the New York, American, Midwest, San Francisco or Toronto Exchange, for example—is that its customers have a great range of securities to pick from. The smaller house, not on an exchange, may have a tendency to push certain stocks it can trade in or which it happens to have on hand.

The big house also has an impressive research department, which makes exhaustive studies of particular industries or companies from time to time. These can be extremely valuable to the customer, providing the broker handling his account in the big firm makes use of these research reports. Unfortunately many of them don't.

Another advantage of the larger firms is that they are likely to be more effective in getting you shares in new issues which are in heavy demand. Often a big firm is one of the underwriters of a new issue, which means that it will be able to supply you if you want to buy. On the other hand, this can be a disadvantage because an underwriting firm sometimes tends to push a new issue too hard among it own customers.

BASIC ADVANTAGE

The big firm has another basic advantage in that it can give you comprehensive service in many fields. It's set up to handle all types of business—underwriting, commodities, and many special services. This is not to decry the small house or the independent broker. While you can get good personal attention with large houses, sometimes the small house is able to give you a particular degree of service which you may find suits your needs. Some independent brokers have a flair for the off-beat investment, the sleeper that has somehow slipped by the bigger houses.

However you make your selection, please don't make it on the basis of the physical appearance of the broker's office. For many years my own office was so dark and cramped that my friends referred to it as "the cave." It was a small, rear office without a window or carpet, jammed with battered furniture. My desk was against a fire exit, and my two assistants were practically in my lap. But I know we did a good job for my customers, outward appearances notwithstanding.

So far we've been discussing what you can look for in a broker. Now we come to an equally important subject: what the broker needs from you.

He needs quite a bit if he is to do a good job for you. I'm reminded of one of my early customers. He came in one day with a black lunch box, which led me to assume he was a lower-bracket government worker who carried his lunch to save money. Our early discussions, therefore, were based on my belief that he had a small amount of money for investment in some safe stocks. It developed later that he was loaded, and after we got to understand each other we developed a $50,000 portfolio for him. It certainly would have saved time, though, if he had told me a little more in the beginning about his financial situation.

Another visitor came in English tweeds and tattersall vest and announced airily, "I've decided to let you handle all my investments." After considerable conversation on the broadest financial plane it turned out he had $1,000 to put in the market.

YOUR OBJECTIVE

My point is this: Your broker needs to know right at the start how much you want to invest, what investments you already have, just how much risk you can take, whether your main objective is a good annual income or rapid growth in value or a compromise combining these.

You should have all this pretty well thought out before you go to him, although from his experience may come reasons to change your mind.

It may be that you have certain prejudices or desires which will restrict your investments. If so, tell your broker at the start. One customer of mine is interested only in stocks selling under $5. He's convinced that in the long run they are the source of the best profits.

Some customers have scruples against investing in loan companies because they object to the large interest rates charged by those firms. I know of investors who won't put any money in companies located in the South. Others have a strange prejudice against mining companies.

Your broker may not agree with your ideas and he may try to argue you out of them, but if you insist, he will generally work within the framework you draw.

The main thing is to tell him the truth and the whole truth. You wouldn't withhold a description of your aches and pains from your doctor; don't play coy with your broker. He's an honorable man who will preserve your secrets.

There are a number of technical points you should clear up and your broker should settle early: Do you want to set up some kind of a regular investment program—$50 or $100 a month, say—or do you want to invest only an amount you already have in hand? Do you want your dividends sent to you or do you want them held in your account for further investment? Do you want to leave your stock certificates with your broker or would you rather have them sent to you? How do you want your stock titled—in your own name or in one of several forms of joint ownership?

PERSONAL VISIT

Most brokerage business is transacted on the telephone, but I think a personal visit is advisable at least in starting off the broker-customer relationship.

Ninety-five per cent of my customers don't spend any time sitting around the board room watching the minute-to-minute fluctuations in the market, and they seldom come in to see me. My typical procedure is to arrange an early luncheon conference with a new customer and then rely on the phone for further transactions unless he wants to see me for some special reason.

A final word of advice: Don't be afraid to push your own ideas. It's your own money, and your broker doesn't expect you to be a yes man. Further, brokers frequently get ideas from their clients, and we aren't ashamed to admit it.

My clients include economists, government officials, lawyers and other highly trained men. I respect their opinions. They seldom have inside information, but they often have the valuable informed judgments of men who have studied and thought out their investments. Ask any question that comes to your mind.

Always remember: You are the investor.

Asians To Prepare Waterway Report

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —The U.N. reports 14 experts from Burma, India, Indonesia, Japan, Pakistan and Thailand will reach Moscow next Wednesday to start five weeks' study of inland waterways in the Soviet Union and 10 days on Hungarian waterways. They'll report findings to the U.N. in the fall.

PICKRICK SAYS

LESTER MADDOX

The following was received from a small boy, while visiting The Pickrick with family and friends, without any solicitation, suggestion or encouragement from any person. "Mr. Pickrick, these greens and chopped turnips you serve at The Pickrick are so good that if I owned The Pickrick I wouldn't sell any of the greens but would eat all of them myself." Now friends, all the statements I have made about wonderful Pickrick food cannot begin to equal the statement made by this little boy. Try us soon for a delightful meal and then you will know why thousands of children and grown-ups, too, have made The Pickrick "Georgia's Favorite Eating Out Place."

AND THE LEGISLATIVE

Committee investigating the Atlanta Airport should be commended because I hear that since the investigation started the revenue from one concession alone has jumped from under $40,000.00 annually to over $150,000.00. If this is true and surely it is, then if you keep investigating you may scare up a million dollars or more each year for the city treasury. This sure would help the taxpayers of Atlanta and then, too, our public officials in Atlanta wouldn't have so much trouble trying to make ends meet.

SPEAKING OF FORTY-HOUR

work weeks, I would like to have my say. Eight-hour days with one hour out for lunch leaves seven hours, which isn't too bad, but when you add on another hour for two coffee breaks and one hour for "chewing the rag," you have the work day down to only five hours, and I think that is cutting it a little short. I know many fine people who wouldn't want to leave work until they had completed a day's work because they know that to do otherwise would be wrong, and I thank God for people who like to earn what they get, but I was in a building the other day where it seemed as though nobody was busy but the elevator operators and they were very active carrying other employees to and from their coffee breaks.

YOU MAY NOT have an hour to "chew the rag," but you should take a few minutes to visit the Pickrick and chew some

RELIGION IN GEORGIA

Mountain Folk Make Church a Living Force

By BETSY LOCHRIDGE

They were holding a camp meeting on the tree-shaded grounds near Winder; farther on, revival tents were pitched along the roadside. "Body, Mind and Soul," the sign read, "services at 7:45 nightly." The countryside was studded with churches. Their steeples pierced a glittering sky and all their windows were opened to the August sun. Dahlias and sunflowers stood like sentinels at their doors. And in graveyards, cloistered by crape myrtle, fresh flowers bloomed on every grave. In Hiawasee, at twilight, chimes rang out across Chatuge and echoed through the misty valleys. By nightfall, all the village churches were aglow with light. Through their open doorways, you could see the mountain congregations bowed in prayer. And driving north, into the vast, dark mountains, you could hear them singing, "Abide With Me."

To drive through north Georgia is to realize anew how vital a force is religion in this state.

Summer Work Camps

All the townspeople of Linz, Austria, gathered around to watch the young Americans digging ditches in the rain.

They were Methodist college students, traveling with the European Travel Seminar and Work Camp, under the leadership of the Rev. Sam Laird, Emory University's director of religious life.

At the Methodist kindergarten in Linz they built a retaining wall out of slabs of concrete from a demolished German bunker. At the nearby Refugee Boy's Home they painted corridors and roofs, built another retaining wall, landscaped it and carved out walkways and patios.

Rev. Sam Laird

Questions in the Rain

And while they worked in the steady Austrian rain they answered questions: "Is America really trying to prevent a third World War? Do Americans really have equal rights and opportunities? Does Little Rock speak for America?"

The most effective answers to these, and other questions by wary Europeans lay in the fact that 27 U.S. students, motivated "by Christian love and concern" had paid their way to Europe to build retaining walls for an Austrian kindergarten and a home for young Hungarian refugees.

Summer work camps are becoming increasingly popular with U.S. protestants, who find them an effective demonstration of practical Christianity as well as American good will.

The Methodist group, directed by the Rev. Mr. Laird and his wife, visited England, Germany, Holland, Belgium, Austria, Switzerland, France, Scotland and Ireland. They did a fair share of sight-seeing, but more important, they visited refugee camps and talked to Protestant leaders throughout Europe.

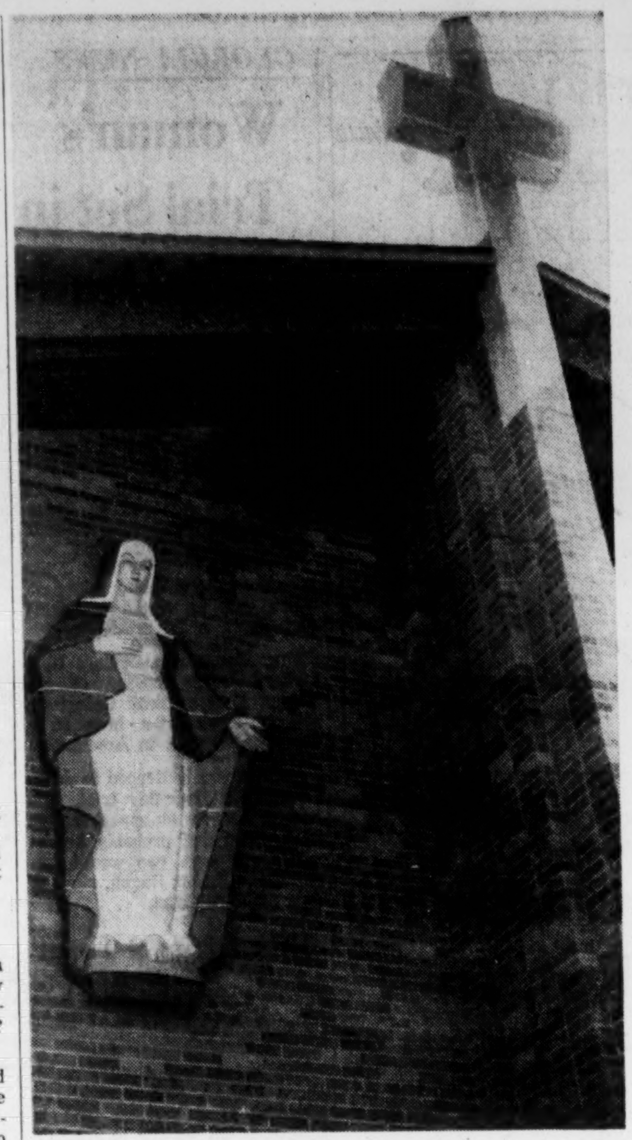

Because of its renewed concern with the needs of the people, the Protestant churches are fast becoming a vital force in Europe, according to Laird.

'Lady Chatterley's Lover' Condemned

The recent nationwide distribution of "Lady Chatterley's Lover" in six paperback editions has brought a stern rebuke from The Southern Presbyterian Journal.

The Grove Press hardbound, unexpurgated edition of the D. H. Lawrence shocker, heretofore outlawed in the United States, has already spent 14 weeks on the best-seller lists. According to The Journal, cheaper editions "will be read by a widening number of individuals, many of whom will be boys and girls in their late teens."

Deploring the Supreme Court ruling which permits distribution of the book, The Journal condemns the book as "a story which pictures the breaking of the Seventh Commandment as normal, right and attractive."

TRIPTYCH RESEMBLES ITALIAN FRESCO, DEPICTS ANNUNCIATION

Msgr. Cornelius Maloney Displays George Beattie Painting

Briarcliff Church Rooted Deep in State

The Immaculate Heart of Mary Church is the product of a time, a place, a people and a tradition.

A brilliant example of the current renaissance in church art and architecture, the Briarcliff road sanctuary was wrought from the craftsmanship, the engineering skill and the raw materials of Georgia.

A local architect, Warren Penny, designed the church, constructed of Georgia brick.

A local sculptor, Julian Harris, designed the modern Stations of the Cross and the stylized terra cotta Immaculate Heart of Mary over the entrance.

A local artist, Georgia Beattie, painted the chapel triptych, a softly muted and antiqued rendering of the annunciation, done in the mood of an Italian fresco.

And local craftsmen fashioned the lofty wooden lattice screens which frame the altar and veil the translucent windows at the rear of the sanctuary.

A motif of bronze passion flowers accents the magnificent wooden corpus, set against a redwood background over the Italian marble altar. The choir occupies its ancient liturgical position in the Mary chapel at the front of the sanctuary. Red oak pews seat a congregation of 750 families.

The ancient symbols on the stained glass windows, alternately high and low, red and blue, are only one example of the church's commitment to the future and its involvement with the past.

There is the Crying Room, a soundproof, glass fronted place off the main sanctuary where parents can watch and hear the services while tending to their young.

There is the baptistry cloistered by wrought iron gates, encrusted with the Cross, the Ichtus, oldest of all Christian symbols, the Crossed Keys, the grapevine and the ancient Greek Chi Rho symbol. Limpid in feeling, the gates were fashioned by local artisans to suggest the flow of water.

And there are the Stations of the Cross, depicting the Passion of Christ and executed in metals and glass. Deeply symbolic, starkly modern, they will be exhibited internationally this winter.

The church represents the fulfillment of a dream for its pastor, Msgr. Cornelius Maloney, and its architect, Warren Penny, who wanted "a church on the human scale—but with a deeply religious aspect."

Flowers Reveal Beauty of Faith

Flowers—on the altars, baptistry and pulpit tables of Atlanta's churches — are giving eloquent voice to the faith of local churchwomen.

Once left to professionals, church floral arrangements are today considered an art form of worship by members of Atlanta's altar guilds and flower committees.

"But they should always be a part of the background; they must never dominate," says Mrs. Donald Hastings Sr., nationally known lecturer on church floral arrangements. She believes that arrangements should harmonize with the atmosphere and architecture of the church, and the form of its worship service.

Mrs. H. P. Whitehead, director of the Daughters of the King at the Cathedral of St. Philip, agrees. "The cross, not the flowers, should be the focal point," she adds.

She believes that stylized arrangements are distracting. Most of the arrangements done for the altar at St. Philip's are symetrical or asymmetrical.

Arrangements should be simple, and dignified in mood, according to Mrs. Hastings. She prefers the asparational line—"the straight line leading upward."

When working with a dark background, Mrs. Hastings uses brilliant colors against pale hues. If the background is light, she starts out with greens and works toward colors. She warns against white. "Either the altar or the flowers is bound to look soiled," she says.

Both Mrs. Hastings and Mrs. Whitehead prefer "formal" flowers—gladioli, roses, lilies, dahlias and white hydrangeas. In summer both use "a world of greens" for their cool feeling. And in winter? Last Christmas apples against a background of greens were used at St. Philip's, and grapes and apples were used as Thanksgiving decorations.

Flower arrangements should be well constructed," says Mrs. Hastings. "And sprayed with water," adds Mrs. Whitehead.

Homecoming Tomorrow at Baptist Home

The Georgia Baptist Children's Home will observe its annual home-coming day Sunday at Hapeville and Baxley.

John C. Warr, general manager of the children's home, said he expects about 500 former home residents to be at the Hapeville campus and about 150 at the Baxley campus.

The program will officially begin at both campuses with 11 a.m. chapel services. Louie D. Newton, pastor of Atlanta's Druid Hills Baptist Church, will speak at Hapeville.

Greek Orthodox Conference Set

Over 1,000 Greek Orthodox Youth of America are expected to attend the organization's 8th International Conference in Grand Rapids, Mich., Sunday through next Saturday.

Theme of the conference is "Peace—The Unity of Spirit in the Bond of Peace."

Rev. Kimsey To Lead Branan Youth Rally

The Rev. Norman Kimsey, associate pastor of Wesley Memorial Church, will lead a Youth Revival at Mary Branan Methodist Church Aug. 23-28.

Dr. Brantley Quits Mercer for New Job

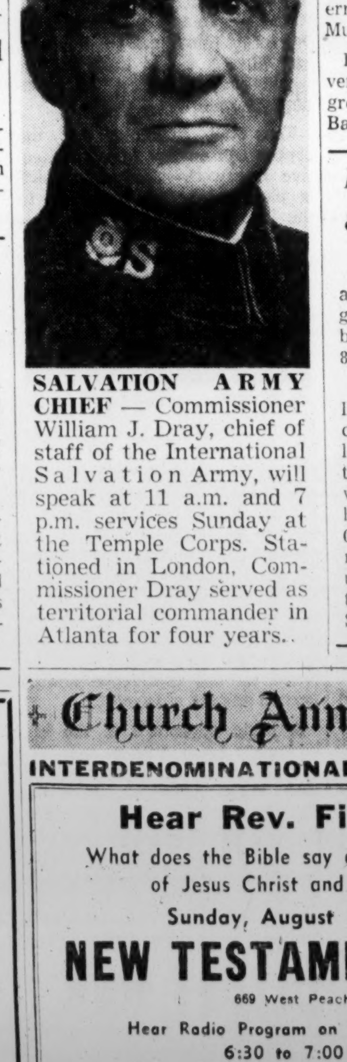

NASHVILLE, Tenn.—Dr. Rabun L. Brantley, a native Georgian and vice president of Mercer University, has accepted the post of executive secretary of the education commission of the Southern Baptist Convention.

Succeeding Dr. R. Orin Cornett, Dr. Brantley will direct teacher recruitment and placement, church publications and Christian education emphasis for more than nine million Southern Baptists.

DeKalb Parish Sets First Mass

The new Catholic parish of Saints Peter and Paul, to be erected eventually on Tilson road in south DeKalb County, will provide the first masses for its parishoners on Sunday.

The masses will be offered in the chapel of the Ward Funeral Home at 8, 9 and 10:30 a.m.

SALVATION ARMY CHIEF — Commissioner William J. Dray, chief of staff of the International Salvation Army, will speak at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. services Sunday at the Temple Corps. Stationed in London, Commissioner Dray served as territorial commander in Atlanta for four years.

Billy Graham

Examine Your Way of Daily Living

QUESTION: Why is there such a difference in Christians? Some of them are so nice but others repel me.—S. W. A.

ANSWER: Your question should make every Christian search his own heart and examine his way of daily living. Unfortunately, we who bear the name of Christian so often fail to live up to the name at the level where we come in daily contact with other people.

Impatience, loss of temper, pettiness, jealousy, a critical spirit, pride, just plain bad manners—all of these things make any Christian unattractive and blunt any hope of an effective Christian witness. The answer to this vexing problem is the necessity of submitting our entire personality to the indwelling and control of the Holy Spirit. Where the Holy Spirit has possession of our lives, the fruits of the Spirit will be in evidence—love, joy, peace, patience, gentleness, etc.—and where you find these things the Christianity we profess becomes something lovely.

He is a graduate of Baylor University and holds a master's degree in music from Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary.

Little Rock Expects 80,000 for Graham

Special to The Constitution

LITTLE ROCK, Ark.—Attendance at two Billy Graham evangelistic services here in September is expected to total between 80,000 and 90,000.

W. O. Vaught Jr., pastor of Immanuel Baptist Church and chairman of the committee on local arrangements, predicts that War Memorial Stadium, where the services are to be held, will have all of its 40,000 seats filled for the Saturday night service, Sept. 12, and that up to 50,000 will be on hand for the Sunday afternoon service, Sept. 13.

Why not? Isn't is reported that "Church Members" invited a Brewery to Atlanta and Fulton County; Isn't it reported that "Church Members" allow 69 illegal whiskey pouring licenses in Atlanta; Isn't it reported that "Church Members" permit prostitution in Atlanta; Isn't it reported that "Church Members" approve every whiskey and beer license in Atlanta and Fulton County; Isn't it reported that "Church Members" are involved in all matters of government corruption? At least Khrushchev is not a hypocrite. The whole world KNOWS he is an Atheist and fights for what he believes!

CHURCH OF CHRIST

The World's Most Important Question
The Greatest Question in Life Is Found Coming From the Lips of the Philippian Jailer in Acts 16:30—
"Sirs, What Must I Do To Be Saved?"
SALVATION IS OBTAINED ONLY THROUGH CHRIST.
"Ye were redeemed, not with corruptible things, as silver and gold, from your vain conversation received by tradition from your fathers; but with the precious blood of Christ as of a lamb without blemish and without spot." (1 Peter 1:18-19)
MAN MUST OBEY TO BE SAVED! ". . . He become the author of eternal salvation unto all them that obey Him . . ." (Heb. 5:9)
MAN MUST BELIEVE: "But without Faith it is impossible to Please Him . . ." (Heb. 11:6)
MAN MUST REPENT: ". . . but now commandeth all men everywhere to repent . . ." (Act 17:30)
MAN MUST CONFESS: "Whosoever therefore shall confess me before men, him will I confess before my Father which is in heaven." (Matt. 10:32)
MAN MUST BE BAPTIZED: "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved." (Mark 16:16, also Acts 2:38; Acts 22:16; Gal. 3:26, 27; I Pet. 3:21)

Judge Moore Signs Warrants For Judge Clinkscales' Arrest

warrants could not be issued because they had not been returned in open court on Aug. 10 when the Jackson County Grand Jury returned them.

Frank Bowers, Pierce's attorney, said he concurred in Smith's argument on the alleged invalidity of the indictments.

Smith contended that if Judge Clinkscales was disqualified to issue the warrants, then he was also disqualified to receive the warrants in court.

The attorney argued that the only thing the judge could do under Georgia law with a case against himself is to request another judge to hear it. That has been done and Mountain Circuit Judge John E. Frankum has been asked to preside in the trial.

IN OPEN COURT

Quillian contended, however, that the indictments had been properly returned, being turned over to the court clerk by the grand jury bailif in open court while the judge was presiding.

The solicitor argued the judge was not disqualified until the indictments were returned in court. He said that if Smith's line of reasoning were followed, a Superior Court judge "could commit any crime and never be indicted."

Smith interjected that that was his position — that a grand jury could not indict a Superior Court judge. In answer to a question from Judge Moore, he said he had been unable to find any Georgia case where a judge had been indicted.

"There ought to be some way to get rid of it," Judge Moore said. "I imagine the defendant himself wants to get rid of it."

Smith contended the only way the indictment could be received would be for another judge to receive it. He said the solicitor should have notified the judge an indictment was pending, so he could disqualify himself and another judge to receive it or have the governor appoint one to do so.

PROPERLY RETURNED

After further argument, Judge Moore ruled that the indictment had been properly returned into open court. He said he was signing the bench warrant to "get the wheels of justice moving." He pointed out that since Judge Frankum probably would call a special session of court to hear the case, it should be gotten in shape for him to try it.

Judge Moore also noted that other points Smith raised as to the validity of the indictment should be raised before Judge Frankum.

Smith gave some indication of the legal battle the indictments face when Judge Moore questioned him about the amount of bonds to be required. Smith said one of the charges "is a misdemeanor and the other doesn't have a penalty."

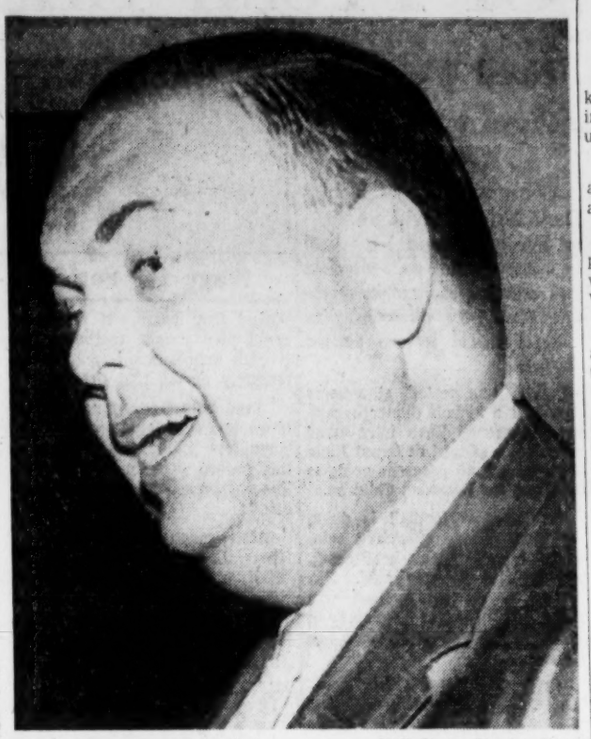

Questioned about this later, Smith said he assumed the barratry indictment against Clinkscales was based on a 1958 statute. He said this code defines the crime of conspiracy to commit barratry but has no penalty section.

Smith also contended the offense charged could not come under a 1933 barratry law.

Solicitor Quillian said the judge was indicted under the 1933 code.

Smith said the courts have held that for a person to be adjudged "a common barrator" under the 1933 law, he must have "frequently" incited litigation. Courts have held this to mean at least three times, he said. This is defined as a misdemeanor.

The 1958 statue specifically says it is a law to define the crime of conspiring to commit barratry. Only penalty provided is under the second section which provides misdemeanor penalty for "two or more persons" convicted of conspiring to commit barratry.

know that they will find their work interesting and fruitful for all of us."

Hawaii came into the Union as the 44th state in population and the 47th in size.

The islands have 585,000 people—more than Alaska, Delaware, Nevada, New Hampshire, Vermont and Wyoming.

In area, Connecticut, Delaware and Rhode Island are smaller than Hawaii's 6,434 square miles.

It was truly historic to bring Hawaii into the Union, Eisenhower said in his talk at the ceremony, because a new state had been admitted for the second time within a year.

"It had been a long time since any state has been admitted," the President said, "so that to have this 49th and 50th membership of our Union in such a short space is truly a unique experience."

Among those witnessing the ceremony was Romania's new minister, George Macovescu, who had just presented his credentials and remained to watch the proceedings at Eisenhower's invitation.

Falling Tree Cuts Highland Ave. Power

A falling tree Friday blacked out the Highland-Virginia avenue business section about 20 minutes, a Georgia Power Co. spokesman said.

Service to the area was interrupted when a tree which was being cut down in the 800 block of Briarcliff terrace, NE, fell across power lines.

Some parts of the area were without power as much as an hour while power company crews worked to repair the damage.

U.S. Recesses Coastal Air Route Case

WASHINGTON (AP) — An already prolonged hearing on rival applications for a southern transcontinental air route was recessed Friday until Sept. 22.

Attorneys for the airlines seeking authority to fly the route agreed to the recess after completing cross-examination of capt. Eddie V. Rickenbacker, chairman of the board of Eastern Air Lines.

Eastern is one of nine trunk airlines competing for the route.

The hearing began in Houston last May 5 before Edward T. Stodola, an examiner for the Civil Aeronautics Board. The hearing later was moved to Los Angeles and then to Miami, Fla., before opening in Washington early in July.

Eastern will resume presentation of its case when Stodola reconvenes the hearing Sept. 22.

key house has been constructed was echoed by Mayor Hartsfield and Alderman Charlie Leftwich, chairman of the aldermanic parks committee.

"We're making routine checks of the building before we accept it, just as we do any other building," said the mayor.

"There's nothing wrong with it," Hartsfield said, adding with a big grin: "But there're lots of monkeys out there."

"A few minor things need clearing up," Leftwich said, "but we hope to have it open in about 10 days."

Regarding safety precautions, Simons emphasized there's no way for the monkeys to get at the viewing public, or vice versa.

ask about the baby," Mrs. Howell said. "This sudden interest is hard to understand."

Russell G. Turner Sr., an attorney, said he handled the matter at Mrs. Howell's request . . . "as a routine matter—just as I've handled hundreds of other adoptions."

Turner said the mother came to his office and signed a release in which she swore that she was divorced from her husband and the child was born out of wedlock. He said the signature of the father is not needed in such cases.

Copies were filed in triplicate, he said—one copy going to the Welfare Department, one to the State Bureau of Vital Statistics and one attached to the court record.

A representative of the Welfare Department later called his office and said he had been unable to contact the mother, Turner said. He added he referred the caller to Mrs. Howell since he did not know the mother's address.

A welfare representative opposed the temporary order in an adoption hearing in Fulton Superior court because the mother had not been located. Turner related. He said Judge Jesse M. Wood granted the order.

The mother, now married and the mother of a three-months-old daughter, was quoted that she intends to start court proceedings in order to regain custody of the two-year-old son. She said she would appeal to the legal aid society for aid.

In statements obtained by Jenkins, the natural mother and her mother were quoted that they were approached by Mrs. Howell.

However, Mrs. Howell and another witness said the mother approached the police woman.

The natural mother, who said she had not seen her baby boy since he was four days old, said Mrs. Howell drove them to the attorney's office and later drove the natural mother to the hospital and personally stood for the hospital bill.

The natural mother said the boy was born March 15, 1957, at a private hospital. She said Mrs. Howell and another woman came for her four days later and en route home the child was handed to the unidentified woman.

Mrs. Howell said the foster parents paid the hospital bill as well as the attorney fee.

Rockefeller Met by Son, Bride-Elect

one they have been speculating about here for weeks—was on the possible political value to Rockefeller of his son's marriage to a Scandinavian girl.

The governor threw back his head, laughing.

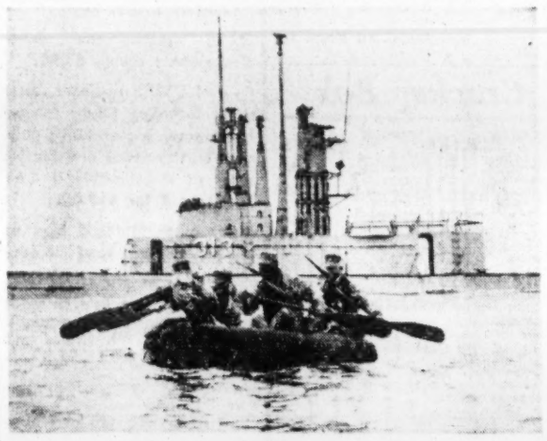

"That's not a matter of any consideration in this visit," he said. "I'm delighted that Steven is getting a beautiful and intelligent Scandinavian wife, believe me."

Did he think the alliance might strengthen his position if he were to enter the Wisconsin presidential primary, in view of the number of voters there of Scandinavian origin?

"You have to remember that we already have a daughter-in-law of Scandinavian origin," he said. "We're delighted to be getting another." His eldest son, Rodman, is married to the former Barbara Olsen. Her grand aunt lives some 60 miles east of Sogne.

In Amsterdam, on a stopover on the flight from New York, Rockefeller said, "I can assure you that the family has nothing to do with this publicity. Actually, the bride and groom would be very happy to be left alone."

Dodd Asks Return Of Frosh Eligibility

Need Weapon Against Pros

By MICKEY LOGUE

Georgia Tech's Bobby Dodd Friday night predicted live professional football is Atlanta-bound and proposed that colleges again make freshman eligible for varsity play as a psychological weapon against the pros.

Dodd's unexpected statements climaxed a kickoff dinner heralding the second Tech intra-squad game to be played at Grant Field Sept. 12 with all proceeds going to the Fund for Retarded Children.

"Professional football is doing the greatest job of public relations I know," Tech's head coach and athletic director said. "In a few years pro football will move into Atlanta. They play a great game and have one big advantage.

"The pros take a boy who has developed into a college star and in a couple of years he becomes a star for them. They then keep him for 5, 6, 7, 8 or nine years."

There's the rub, Dodd said, after spending three seasons developing a player's ability and reputation, the colleges graduate him and have to compete against him at the box office as a professional.

"Imagine how we would have felt if we could have kept Wade Mitchell, George Volkert, little Jimmy Thompson, Paul Rotenberry, Don Stephenson and Ken Owen," he continued.

"We need for freshmen to be allowed to play college football. The reason you remember Mitchell and Volkert is because they played four years. If freshmen could play varsity football, then a high school star wouldn't be forgotten during that first year."

"Take Stan Gann, for instance. If we had been able to play him some last year as a freshman, this season you would have felt like sophomore Stanley was your boy."

After concluding an informative talk to some 400 Atlanta Civitans and guests at the Athletic Club, Dodd told a reporter, "Pro football's coming. There is no use trying to hide our heads in the sands and say it isn't."

Asked whether varsity football would be too rough or demanding on first quarter (or first semester) freshmen, Dodd said, the freshmen would find it easier going on the varsity, and the ones who made the traveling squad would be the happiest freshmen in camp.

The Southeastern Conference quit letting freshmen play varsity football after the 1953 season. Mitchell, Volkert, Rotenberry, etc., who later played on Tech's great,

Donovan's Dilemma

Bill Veeck, the colorful Chicago Chisox generalissimo, jokingly blames Dick Donovan's prolonged pitching recession on the twin All-Star games.

Veeck explains that Donovan always hit his stride after the All-Star game and points out that the additional contest fouled up the timetable.

Outlar

He's only kidding, of course, for the entire Chisox family is disturbed about Donovan. Billy Pierce, Early Wynn and Donovan were supposed to be the Big Three of the Chicago staff.

Wynn, a 16-game winner, has shouldered more than his share of the load, but Donovan and Pierce have faltered. Since leaping from Atlanta to Chicago in 1955, Donovan has been a late starter. But late into the season, Donovan hasn't contributed his share of pennant chips.

No one is more perturbed over Donovan's case than the serious-minded pitcher. A tremendous competitor, Donovan is eager to help the Chisox nail down their first pennant in 40 years.

Before a recent game with Baltimore at Comiskey Park, Donovan discussed his plight.

"I've never felt better and had less," he said. "I just don't have anything on the ball. About four weeks ago, I was pitching against the Red Sox, and something happened. My arm was stiff after the game, but I didn't think much about it. I've thought plenty about it since. I feel wonderful, but I'm just not getting anyone out.

—Lopez Expects a '58 Encore

"I went to the doctors, and they took X rays," Donovan continued. "The trouble is in my shoulder. They diagnosed it as tendonitis. Maybe I'll be all right in a day or so. I sure hope so.

"This club has been wonderful to be with this year," he added. "They really want to win, and I hope I can help from here on out."

Donovan returned to action last Sunday in Kansas City, and the Chisox were optimistic that the long rest would get the hurler back in winning stride.

But, as Donovan noted, he didn't have it. The A's bombed him to cover via five hits and two runs in less than three innings.

Manager Al Lopez is still confident that Donovan will revert to the sensational form displayed down the stretch last year. He was invincible at season's end, and Lopez heralded Dick as the "finest pitcher in the American League" after the all-star game.

"Donovan has been throwing better lately," Lopez said earlier this week. "I'm sure that he'll win for us from here on out. He's had a lot of trouble with his shoulder, but he's going to be all right now.

"Of course, he's had arm trouble this year," Lopez continued, "but I'm convinced that he has a complex about not being an early starter. There are a lot of players like that. You're always hearing someone say he can't hit or pitch in the spring. A lot of it is imagination.

—Chisox Staff Needs a Booster Shot

"I'm not worried about Donovan now. You watch. He'll start winning. And I also think Pierce will be all right within a few days. They can sure give us a lift."

One thing's for sure. None of the Chisox will be trying any harder than Donovan. Fans who saw him at Poncey in 1954 will never forget the gritty right-hander. He won 18 games and struck a dozen homers for Whitlow Wyatt's grand-slam champions.

On the verge of retiring from baseball the previous year, Donovan discovered that his career was only starting. Under Wyatt's tutelage, he added the much-publicized slider to his pitching repertoire. More important, he learned how to control his explosive temper.

After flunking several major league tests with Milwaukee, Donovan stuck with the Chisox in '55. He bagged 15 triumphs as a freshman, sacked 12 the next season and logged a banner 16-6 record in 1957. He got off to a miserable start last year, but boosted his chart to 15-14 with a strong finish.

The Chisox have never needed him more than right now. During the Baltimore set, in which the Birds won two of the first three, the weary staff showed signs of collapsing. Wynn didn't have it in the opener, and Lopez has been shuffling pitchers like a Las Vegas dealer.

Will the Chisox take it all this year, or merely be another also ran? Donovan will help supply the answer to that paramount question.

Though he failed to travel the route, Donovan indicated Friday night that he's back on the right rail. He limited Washington to one run in five innings as the Chisox celebrated Nellie Fox Night with a 5-4 triumph.

Donovan required help from Gerry Staley in the sixth, but there was encouragement that he'll be lending a helping hand from now on.

Antonelli Registers 17th Win As Giants Dump Phils Twice

Frisco Extends 1st Place Lead

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—San Francisco southpaws Johnny Antonelli and Mike McCormick, apparently making a career out of beating Philadelphia, trimmed the Phillies twice Friday night. The 6-0 and 10-0 victories extended the Giants' National League lead to 2½ games over runnerup Los Angeles.

The two star Giants' pitchers now have a total of nine victories over the last-place Phillies—four for Antonelli and five for the 21-year-old McCormick. Each has logged three Philadelphia shutouts.

The Giants made the task easy for their pitchers in both games with lusty hitting and helped by schoolboy antics by the hapless Philadelphians, on the bases and in the field. Antonelli coasted to his 17th victory against seven losses, tying him with Milwaukee's Lew Burdette for the most major league victories this season. For McCormick it was win No. 11 in 21 decisions.

Nightcap Taken By McCormick

But just to give the soaking-wet southpaw a little breathing room, the Giants collected three runs in the sixth, highlighting stolen bases by San Francisco's brilliant Willies—Mays and McCovey.

Unitas, Colts Bombard Giants In Exhibition Grid Tilt, 28-3

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Johnny Unitas bombed the New York Giants into a 28-3 defeat Friday night as the Baltimore Colts won a replay of last fall's world professional football championship game.

This one didn't count, since it was a National Football League exhibition, but champion Baltimore was out to show it still is superior. Its steel-pronged defense picked off five Giant passes, and three of them set up Baltimore touchdowns.

Unitas threw six inches to Raymond Berry for one and 30 and 21 yards to Jim Mutscheller for two more.

The other Baltimore touchdown came on a 44-yard run by fleet Lennie Moore.

The Giants never seriously threatened except once and had to settle for a 19-yard field goal by Pat Summerall that time.

For a half, the crowd was treated to a fine defensive game. But the Giants defense went to pieces in the third period and allowed the Colts to score three touchdowns.

The 6 - inch pass that Unitas threw to Berry came on fourth down when the Colts found themselves stymied after three running plays had made only 4 yards. Berry circled behind New York in the end zone and took the pass almost under the goal posts.

Montag HR Fails To Save Crackers

Bears Claim 11th Straight From Atlanta, 6-1, 4-0

By CHARLIE ROBERTS
Constitution Sports Writer

MOBILE, Ala.—Atlanta snipers who won the battle of New Orleans were firing with toy pistols Friday night in another fruitless siege of Mobile, and the Bears shot them down in both ends of a twin bill for the fifth consecutive time this season, 6-1 and 4-0.

Three of pennant-bound Mobile's pitchers—Gene Lary, Bill Dailey and Wally Seward—were throwing aspirin tablets. Lary and Dailey collaborated on a five-hitter in the curtain-raiser and southpaw Seward more than matched it in wielding a five-blow calsomine brush in the afterpiece.

All of the cellar-sunk Cracker batters had headaches trying to solve the mystery of the where abouts of the round pellets as dispensed by the trio. 1,338 Hartwell Field Ladies Night fans (701 paid) enjoyed watching them suffer while being ground under the Bruins' paws for the 11th straight time.

All that saved the Crackers the ignominy of being whitewashed twice in one night was a two-out home run by pinch-hitting Bob Montag in the last inning of the seven inning lidlifter.

The 345-foot belt over the right-field fence off Dailey was the Atlanta pilot's first of the season in 10 trips, his 113th while wearing Cracker garb.

Gordy Coleman, leading the Southern Assn. in hitting, runs batted in homers and total bases chased home the first two runs in each game, enough for the victories that lengthened the Bears' lead over second place Birmingham to 7½ games.

But as always when these two teame meet it was Mobile's fantastic hurling or Atlanta's utter-

Chisox Maintain Lead By Dropping Nats, 5-4

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago's league-leading White Sox maintained a 2½-game lead in the American League pennant race Friday night with a 5-4 victory over Washington.

The victory, coming before a crowd of 37,986 which turned out to honor second baseman Nellie Fox, was only the second for the Sox in their last six games.

Two unearned runs in the first inning, John Romano's two-run pinch single in the sixth and a run-scoring single by Bubba Phillips in the seventh accountered for all of Chicago's scoring.

But the triumph really was made possible by a pair of great catches in the eighth inning by right fielder Jim Rivera and center fielder Jim Landis.

Dick Donovan started for the Sox but gave way in the sixth to Gerry Staley who was credited with his seventh triumph against three losses. Turk Lown took over in the seventh and finished.

Starter Chuck Stobbs suffered his seventh loss against one triumph.

Fox, the Sox leading hitter, was showered with gifts before the game. He received everything from cigars to automobiles and a sailboat. He failed to get a hit.

BANKING ON SPAHN AND BURDETTE

Don't Fret, Momma, We Ain't Dead Yet

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Well, Momma, I guess I got to tell you. Things ain't all beer and pretzels here in the land of the free and the home of the Braves. I wouldn't want to say everybody is crying in the beer, but along about the eighth inning lately the suds gets pretty salty and ain't quite so full bodied.

Don't count us out, though, Momma. The faithful has got up a saying to go with the tough times.

"With Spahn and Burdette," the saying is, "we'll win it all yet, already."

that I can tell you is something about that Bill Rigney slowly choking to death on bratwurst. Willie McCovey and some of them other San Franciscos is welcome to join in. They talk about our attendance falling off a little, Momma, from the faithful maybe drowning themselves along with their sorrows. To see Rigney turn blue you could fill the ballyard on the banks of the Menomonee at 6 a.m. Monday morning.

Anyway this Spahn and Burdette saying is pretty confident talk, especially the way old Werner Spahn—that's the way we call it up on Villard avenue, Momma—throws at them Giants Thursday night. The baseballs was falling out in the outfield from them 15 hits until you didn't know whether you was at County Stadium or maybe Schultz's Driving Range was renting the outfield.

But don't forget, Momma, old Werner was working with one day's rest, and this is the first time in five rousing attempts this year they have pried him out of the win column. With this average and the help of maybe a timely tornado or two to fill out the rotation, Momma, we could start counting the World Series money.

S. Lewis Burdette, Momma, is one ahead of old Werner already with 17 games in the bank. That is pretty near a month ahead of last year, when it was September the 12th that old Lew notched No. 17. Together they got 33 put away, Momma, which is two more than all the rest of the Milwaukees' best has been able to do among them.

And they're very healthy, Momma. Like you remember from October, 1957. They get healthy when everybody else is dying, especially the Yankees.

Speaking of the Yankees, Momma, if anything that I couldn't bear to mention should happen, it's probably the fault of them New Yorks at the bottom of it. The cowards couldn't stand another autumn like last autumn and somehow that kind of took the schmaltz out of the prospects.

You know how tenderhearted we are here, Momma. Beating the White Sox in the Series wouldn't be like beating the Yankees.

After all, Momma, you brought us up to be nice to the folks from the suburbs.

Furillo's Infield Grounder Climaxes Rally in Ninth

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The Los Angeles Dodgers rallied for four runs in the seventh inning Friday night and scored another run in the ninth as they edged the Pittsburgh Pirates 6-5.

The Pirates scored twice in the ninth. The second-place Dodgers were trailing 3-1 and had gotten only four hits off Pirate starter Ronnie Kline when they began banging out hits in the seventh.

Dodgers starter Johnny Podres gave up seven hits in six innings before he was removed for a pinch hitter in the seventh. Credited with the victory his season record now is 11-7.

Los Angeles scored what turned out to be the winning run in the ninth on Carl Furillo's grounder with the bases loaded.

The Pirates two two runs in the ninth on Rocky Nelson's double, Dick Groat's single, a sacrifice and a walk. They had the tying run on third when Smoky Burgess lined to Charlie Neal who made a one-hand catch to end the game.

Ron Fairly belted a homer into the upper deck in the fifth inning for the Dogers' first run. It was his fourth homer.

The Dodgers jumped on Kline in the seventh and scored three runs on three singles and a double by Neal. Pirate center fielder Roman Mejias helped the Dodgers when he let Hodges' single roll through his legs.

After Fred Green replaced Kline on the mound, Wally Moon poked a single to center that scored another run.

Nichols, Hopkins Advance

Gain Semifinals In State Tennis

First-seeded Bob Nichols, second-seeded Lindsey Hopkins and fourth-seeded Lester Sack Friday moved into semifinals of the Georgia State Tennis Tournament alongside unseeded Bitsy Grant.

Nichols defeated Lee Jones, 7-5, 6-0; Hopkins eliminated his Georgia tennis coach, sixth-ranked Dan Magill, 6-3, 6-2, and fourth-seeded Sack of New Orleans battled past fifth-ranked Harry Thompson, 3-6, 7-5, 6-3.

Grant had entered the semis a day earlier by defeating third-seeded Larry Shippey. Grant was not seeded because he didn't enter the tournament until after the seedings had been made.

Saturday's men's semis pit Hopkins vs. Grant at 1 p.m. and Nichols vs. Sack at 2.

In women's quarterfinals, Marilyn Voges of Chattanooga defeated city champion Inez Long, 6-2, 6-1, and young Dana Lenahan defeated Ruth Lay, 6-0, 6-1.

Sixteen Lettermen Aid Fulton Outlook

By PAUL ATKINSON

For the first time in considerable years, there's depth in letterman numbers at Fulton High School. And Coach Bill Chonko would appreciate a bit of depth in victories.

"We have more experience than we've had in a long time," he said Friday while scanning a roster that showed 16 lettermen. "What will hurt us, however, is a lack of speed. If we just had a few people with speed, we'd be in good shape."

As it is, the prospect for the Redbirds is bright — brighter than in many, many falls.

"We can start a letterman at every position," continued Chonko. "In our starting lineup, we'll have 10 letter winners, including all seven up front.

"At the ends will be Brent Boling (170) and Don McNew (159); tackles are Jerry Neese (195) and Howard Jones (200), guards are Charles Gantt (160) and Sam Hardman (170) while the center will be Tony Allen (202), a two-letter winner.

"In the backfield, we'll open with James Conner (167) at quarterback, Bob Warren (130) and Gary Daniel (130) at the halfbacks, and Dan Hughes (160) at fullback."

Other letter winners on the roster are quarterback Don Fulford (136), fullback Sid Minor (160), halfback James Brooks (156), end Lou Ridinger (170), guard Alvin Williams (160) and center Sam Davis (175). They'll see much duty, of course.

Actually, Fulton figured to be letterman-richer than it is. Chonco had hoped for 26 returning letter winners, but various deals appeared which removed 10 of them. As it is, 16 is a healthy number for the Fultons.

The schedule doesn't favor the Redbirds. First up is a Sept. 5 date with Southwest at Cheney Stadium, then a visit to R. E. Lee in Thomaston and a Sept. 17 date with Brown, a pre-season favorite in 3-AAA West.

"We'll certainly know where we stand after that first trio of games," laughed Chonko. "As I said, I wouldn't feel badly if we had decent speed. But we're a trifle slow, and we'll have to go with light halfbacks in Warren, only non-letter winner on our first 11, and Daniel.

"I'd like to pass a good bit. But Conner, though a good ball handler, isn't a good long passer. He can hit 'em well up close, however. And the ends are three-deep in letter winners. Certainly we'll improve over last season's 0-10.

"As for a contender in 3-AAA East, I'll pick Murphy High School."

Murphy, ironically, was victim of Fulton's stoutest game in '58, a 7-0 victory achieved only because of a 90-yard-plus run.

Harshman Blanks Birds With Three-Hitter, 5-0

CLEVELAND (AP)—Southpaw Jack Harshman, making his first start in Cleveland Stadium since the Indians bought him from Boston, shut out the Baltimore Orioles 5-0 Friday night on three singles.

The victory for the second-place Indians was their third in a row.

Jim Baxes hit a pair of doubles, drove home a pair of runs and scored two himself to spark an Indian attack on Hector (Skinny) Brown. Brown went to the mound with a 5-0 record against the Indians over the last two seasons and had beaten them three times this year.

Staked to a four-run lead in the first inning, Harshman was in command all the way as he posted his fourth victory against nine losses.

He pitched and won a complete game for Cleveland last week in Kansas City, so half his victories have come in the three weeks he's worn an Indian uniform.

Foytack Clips Bosox

DETROIT (AP)—Paul Foytack pitched a four-hitter and Al Kaline drove in both of Detroit's runs with his 22nd home run in the Tigers' 2-0 victory over the Boston Red Sox Friday night.

Foytack, who had not beaten Boston in four decisions this season, overcame a couple of early jams with some doubleplay help from his infield. He had smooth sailing the rest of the way, striking out eight batters and yielding only one hit over the last seven frames.

Kaline hammered his home run in the third inning after a two-out walk to Harvey Kuenn. The league's leading hitter, Kuenn collected three hits in breaking out of a mild slump.

Boston starter Bill Monbouquette was equal to Foytack except for the one pitch to Kaline. Monbouquette hurled the first seven innings, giving up just four hits and fanning seven.

The Red Sox threatened in the first inning, putting two runners on base with one out.

Foytack retired the last 11 batters in succession in gaining his second shutout.

Lakewood Rolls In Spectacular

Lakewood defeated Atlanta, 7-3, and West End shelled East Atlanta, 24-6, in Friday's softball phase of the Jaycees Fifth District "Sports Spectacular" at South Bend Park.

In basketball, DeKalb County beat Glenwood, 38-24, and West End walloped Northside, 40-22. DeKalb County, Lakewood and Atlanta finished 1-2-3 in the ping pong tournament, and Northside's Bill Trentham won the checker competition.

The eight-sport spectacular continues through Sunday.

Speak Up!

—By George Cunningham—

DEAR SPEAK UP: Since Mr. Bobby Dodd won't let the pro football teams play at Grant Field for fear the fans will see a REAL football team for a change, why can't an exhibition game be played at Ponce de Leon Park. It would be a real break for us fans, and poor Earl Mann could use the money.

A Pro Football Fan, Buford.

DEAR APFF: How about playing it in my backyard. I could use the money, too. Seriously, Poncey isn't big enough . . . just like my backyard.

DEAR SPEAK UP: At least four members of last year's Georgia football team—Theron Sapp, Dave Lloyd, Nat Dye and Riley Gunnels—seem to be going great in the pro ranks this year. Now my question is: How can a team which produces four excellent pro prospects fail to win in college? And also, when is Butts going to come up with a winner? I. D. Clair, Atlanta.

DEAR I. D.: The 1958 Bulldogs did win—4 of 10 games—which represented an improvement over previous years. Butts should return to the winning circle this year. For, as I see it, the Bulldogs will be either the favorite or an even bet against all but their last three foes—Florida, Auburn and Georgia Tech. But please, don't bet.

DEAR SPEAK UP: How much money did that plug, Tommy Thompson, get serving as Pete Rademacher's punching bag the other week in their fight? G. I. Jack, Ft. Benning.

DEAR G. I.: For 20 minutes in the ring, Thompson received $43 a minute. Considerably more than he was worth.

Goalby Leads Rubber City After Second Straight 66

Dickinson Has Second Spot

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—Three professionals who haven't won a tournament this year held the top spots Friday at the halfway mark in the $22,000 Rubber City Open. Husky Bob Goalby of Crystal River, Fla., scored his second straight 66 for a 10-under par 132 to pace the pack a stroke ahead of Gardner Dickinson Jr. of West Palm Beach, Fla.

Gardner Dickinson

Dickinson, a 32-year-old 130-pounder, fired a 65, the lowest score of the tournament, to get into contention.

In third place was Doug Sanders of Miami Beach, Fla., who carded his second 67 for 134.

Ted Kroll and Arnold Palmer, who were tied with Goalby at the end of the first round with 66, skidded a bit Friday. Palmer needed 69 strokes for a fourth-place 135, while Kroll's 70 for a 136 left him in a fifth-place deadlock with Tom Nieporte of Bronxville, N.Y., National Open Champion Bill Casper Jr. of Apple Valley, Calif. and Eddie Merrins of Ardmore, Pa. Merrins, a 27-year-old assistant pro at the Merion Cricket Club near Philadelphia, has won less than $500 in two years on the tour.

Aaron Upset Victim In Colonial Golf

MEMPHIS (AP)—Upsets jolted the Colonial Invitational Amateur Golf Tournament Friday, with defending champion Tommy Aaron among those bumped out.

Aaron, of Gainesville, Ga., was beaten 1-up by Robert Eubanks, an insurance executive from Louisville, Ky. Eubanks rallied to win after being 3-down with four holes to go.

Other unexpected first round losers were Jack Rule of Iowa City, Iowa, Tom Raney of Little Rock, Paul Tarnow of Tampa and David Rheams of New Orleans.

Medalist Dale Morey of Indianapolis, Ind., defeated a former Memphis city champion, Max Schwartz, 3 and 2, to join Arkansas' Richard Crawford and Don Essig of Indianapolis in the favorites circle.

Crawford, who hails from El Dorado, knocked off Bobby Ladd of Memphis after 21 holes. Essig defeated Buddy Wade of Memphis, 5 and 3.

Raney couldn't match putts with the Golf Magazine editor from Jackson, Miss., Maynard Craft, and went out 1-up. Tarnow also lost 1-up, bowing to Charlie Harrison of Atlanta.

Two rounds of match play will be held Saturday. The semifinals and championship final will be played Sunday.

Other first-round results included: John Brim Jr., Columbus, Ga., defeated Herbie Abraham, Memphis, 2 and 1; Buddy Baker, Florence, S.C., defeated Frank Eldridge, Valdosta, Ga., 5 and 4; Cobby Ware, Augusta, Ga., defeated Jack Gibson, Jackson, Miss., 2 and 1; Gene Dixon, Memphis, defeated Jimmy Cleveland, Atlanta, 2 and 1.

Rawls, Hanson Tie For Spokane Lead

SPOKANE (AP) — Blonde Betsy Rawls, a cheery Southerner with a blazing putter, and Beverly Hanson, one of golf's consistent contenders, tied for the lead in the $7,500 Spokane Women's Open Friday.

Miss Hanson, of Indio, Calif., shaved two strokes off par to go with her 73 in the first round.

MR. BIG MOUTH — JACKSONVILLE, Fla. In fact, this is Mr. Two-Mouth. Identified as a yellowtail, this small fish with two mouths, one underneath the other, was pulled from the St. Johns River here Friday by 11-year-old Frankie Host, son of a city policeman. D. J. Martin, fish biologist with the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission, said he had never seen a fish with two mouths, and commented, "It must be a genetic farce."

Dodd Asks Freshmen On Varsity

once-beaten 1956 bowl team, were freshmen in 1953.

Long an outspoken advocate of returning to the two-platoon rules that the professionals adopted from the colleges, Dodd indicated that he favored meeting the pro challenge with action.

Dodd added, however, that he realized his "freshman proposal" was controversial in nature.

He said it took four things to produce a championship football team:

1. Equal football players to the opposition.

2. As good a job coaching or better than the opposition.

3. Morale.

4. A schedule of which you can win a majority of the games.

Dodd traced the problems facing Tech coaches in recruiting, coaching and scheduling. Among the biggest, he said is that Georgia high schools aren't preparing their students for the increased standards at engineering schools like Tech.

"Football is not much fun anymore," he said. "The boys have to work too hard, and the coaches have to work them too hard. They don't have much fun except on Saturday.

"We have to contact 300 to 500 high school players to find 25 to 35 qualified to come to Georgia Tech. It's a terrific selling job. We have to spoil 'em during this selling work, and it must shock the boys when they come to college and come back down to earth.

"Then we have to hold our breath for fear they won't pass entrance examinations. We have more scholastic handicaps than our neighbors. The best back in the state last year was not qualified to go to Tech, and one of the best quarterbacks failed his entrance examinations. We could not offer the best back and lineman in Florida scholarships for the same reason.

"Our boys, like the others in the conference, report Sept. 1 ready to scrimmage. If they don't do it, you get behind."

Dodd said that married players was a post World War II hazard.

Another big one is scheduling.

"You have to have enough teams on there that you can beat to keep your job," he said, "and you have to make enough money to meet the budget.

CITY HALL NEWS

Callers Back Crackdown on Speeders

Mayor Hartsfield said Friday his office has received "lots of calls" telling him to "go to it" in getting tough with speeding trucks on Atlanta Expressways.

An all-out war on traffic violators was declared Friday morning by Traffic Supt. J. F. Brown of the Atlanta Police Department. Brown said every extra man that he can spring loose from other duties will be ordered to patrol the Expressways.

Brown's action followed a demand by Hartsfield for a crackdown on Expressway speeders, "especially trucks."

Asserting that phone calls from the public support his action, the mayor pointed again Friday to "overloaded trucks that jacknife" in heavy Expressway traffic.

"Five women killed in less than a week (in collisions with trucks)," the mayor said. "That's the answer to the fellow who asked, 'why pick on trucks?' "

Building Permit

A city building permit was issued Friday to Fulton County for the erection of a $243,000 three-story parking facility at 99 Butler street next to the new county health building.

Building inspector W. R. Wofford said the permit boosted the total value of construction authorized thus far this year to $33,624,383.

Also issued Friday were permits to Southern Bell for a $190,000 addition to a facility at 3130 Peachtree Rd., NE, and to the Gulf Life Insurance Co. for a $74,784 office at 340 E. Paces Ferry Rd., NE.

Grants Easement

The Atlanta-Fulton County Joint Board of Adjustment Friday granted a zoning easement to the Adams-Cates Co. to permit the erection of a 256-unit apartment building at Peachtree street and North avenue, NE.

The easement was requested to clear the way for building "256 apartment units instead of the maximum of 136 units," the petition said.

Report on Baby Market Relayed to Grand Jury

A Fulton County Grand Jury committee which heard Thursday from Welfare Administrator Wellborn Ellis on "gray market" adoption practices reported to the jury as a whole Friday.

The jury remained in session long after it had completed its routine business.

Sol. Gen. Paul Webb declined comment on the matter.

Ellis reportedly turned over to the jury committee Thursday information concerning some 86 adoption cases where alleged "gray market" practices occurred. About half of these involved interstate placements, the others were local.

In these cases, adoptive parents obtained babies, directly or indirectly, by paying medical expenses and sometimes board for the natural mother.

Ellis said this was a violation of law which prohibits any "inducements" to the natural mother to part with her child.

Didn't Enter Lyles' Case, Griffin Says

Former Gov. Griffin said Friday it was the State Law Department—and not himself—who fixed the salaries of the two prosecutors for the Anjette Lyles case.

He also said he had nothing to do with selecting the prosecutors.

Griffin said his only part in the matter was to concur in a request of Superior Court Judge A. M. ("Phil") Anderson and Oscar Long for state help in the prosecution after Sol. Gen. William West disqualified himself.

The two special prosecutors selected—H. T. O'Neal and Charles F. Adams, both of Macon—were paid $7,500 each for their services.

"I did not select the two attorneys for the prosecution and I left the matter of the amount of a fee to the discrimination of the State Law Department," Griffin said.

"The ends of justice were served according to my oath of office and I will leave any further adjudication of this case to the conscience of the present governor who also has obligations and a responsibility to the people of this state."

Atty. Gen. Cook, chief officer of the Law Department, was out of town Friday and not available for comment on Griffin's statement.

Dr. Ward Sees Inflation Worst College Hurdle

Inflation is the gravest problem facing Georgia's colleges and universities, Dr. Judson C. Ward, vice president and dean of faculty at Emory University, told the Northside Kiwanis Club Friday.

He said the schools—both public and private—must "run as hard as they can just to stand still" to get the needed financial support.

Dr. Ward called for all-out financial support of the state's institutions of higher education—"Georgia's instruments for the betterment of the state and the South."

The language of gypsies is derived from Sanskrit, ancient language of the Hindus of India.

CRACKERS

ly futile stick work—probably some of both—that highlighted the wrangle.

When double-death had come to the Crackers again, they had managed only 56 and 16 runs in their last 11 tangles with Mel McGahas' Bruins. Over that span the Bears scored 54 runs.

Seward, now 8-4, handed the Crackers their 12th blanking of the year—eighth by a southpaw, striking out 8 and walking only four. Yet in outdueling Jerry Nelson (3-6) and Corky Valentine, he was no more masterful than Lary (6-3), who departed after 6 innings when his pitching (right) Elbow stiffened.

Chuck Kolakowski, 8-12 after being beaten for the third time by his former mates, retired 14 straight Bears before being bombed for four runs in the seventh frame in his duel with Lary.

But Lary had a 2-0 upperhand, enough to win, before the Crackers got the second Bear out in the first. Dick Young's double, a walk and Coleman's 390-foot double did the damage.

Coleman's two singles batted home his 99th and 100 counters in the first and third inning of the second game. And Vern Grace, who larruped a double and single previously, added icing to the victory cake with his fifth homer in the fifth off Nelson.

The Bears, 16-3 against the Crackers, will fire with Wyn Hawkins (12-8) and Eddie Drapcho (10-5) in Saturday's twin bill starting at 7:30 (Atlanta time). Jack Roberts (2-4) and Ray Ripplemeyer (11-10) are Montag's hill choices.

BUTTS DOUBTS LEAGUE WILL LET FROSH PLAY

Four Southeastern Conference head football coaches, contacted at home by telephone Friday night, were opposed to a suggestion by Georgia Tech Coach Bobby Dodd that freshmen be made eligible for varsity football in the conference.

Georgia Coach Wally Butts said he did not think educators in the conference would go along with the move, and intimated that he, also, was opposed to it. "Regardless of the effect of pro ball on college ball, I don't believe that educators will let freshmen play," Butts said.

LSU's Paul Dietzel, coach of last year's No. 1 team in the nation, agreed. "For one thing, freshmen simply are not ready to play ball in a conference as tough as the SEC. We have found that a freshman coming into college has enough trouble just getting adjusted to college, without having the burden of playing varsity football thrown on him."

The sentiments were echoed by Tennessee's Bowden Wyatt and Wade Walker of Mississippi State. "I don't think freshmen are ready to play in our conference," Wyatt said. "Any team which gets freshmen who are ready are doing a better job of recruiting than we are."

Other conference coaches were unavailable for comment.

Clay TKOs Sonny Ray

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Young Von Clay completed his rapid rise to the top ranks of the light heavyweights Friday night with a decisive technical knockout of fourth-ranked Sonny Ray in 56 seconds of the fifth round.

Clay, a 20-year-old Philadelphian with only 11 pro fights under his belt, sent Ray down for a count of eight in the fourth round with a left uppercut.

Clay, at 170, and Ray, 172½, started slowly, feeling each other out mostly with jabs in the first round.

I Snapped Her Picture As the Queen Swept By

Editor's Note: Marilyn Williamson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Williamson, is Georgia's delegate to the International Junior Red Cross Study Center Aug. 12-23. The Sandy Springs High School senior has written the following account of the event especially for Young Ideas.

By MARILYN WILLIAMSON
Sandy Springs High School

TORONTO—A close-up view of Queen Elizabeth when she visited Halifax, Nova Scotia, is one of the many treasured memories I have to take back to Atlanta when we leave the International JRC Study Center at the University of Toronto.

I was in the doorway of the Nova Scotia Hotel when the queen came in for dinner. She passed within a foot of me! She was beautiful in a baby-blue dress, and the large crowd on hand gave her a tumultuous welcome.

I planned to take a color picture of the Queen, only to find that flash bulbs were prohibited at the hotel entrance. Newspaper photographers, however, had installed flood lights, so I was able to take the picture anyway. (I surely hope it comes out good!)

I was in Nova Scotia because our plane had to land at Greenwood, N.S. when the airfield at our original destination was fogged in and we were unable to land there. John Lamkin, a JRC delegate from Birmingham, was taken to Halifax for lodging by the Canadian Red Cross.

When they first saw Her Majesty, many Canadians in the crowd commented that the Queen had gained weight. A couple even suggested she might be expecting another child. (Later, when it was announced that she is, indeed, to become a mother again early next year, news brought wild jubilation to all of Canada, as well as the rest of the British Commonwealth.)

GRACIOUS HOSTS

I was the house guest of Mr. and Mrs. Chester A. Dorcas and their daughter, Sandra, in Fredericton, New Brunswick, for 10 days before flying back to Toronto for the two-week study course. I couldn't have had more gracious hosts. They simply couldn't do enough for me.

We toured the parliament buildings in the picturesque city on the Saint John River, went to Grand Lake for boating and a picnic, and saw many other points of interest in the province, which is noted for its agricultural production and excellent fishing.

Olegaria Sosa, from British Honduras, is another JRC delegate who sampled New Brunswick hospitality. Olegaria lived with a family in nearby Lancaster, as we quickly became good friends. One of the principal purposes of this home hospitality program and the study center itself, is to strengthen the bonds of international friendship and understanding. As far as I'm concerned, this is already an accomplished fact.

200 DELEGATES

Nearly 200 youths from 41 countries participated in the home visit project and the conference. At the close of the study course, the American delegates (there are 20 of us) will be flown to New York for a visit to the United Nations, then to Washington, D.C., to see other points of national interest.

They tell us that not since its founding in 1827 has the University of Toronto campus had such a cosmopolitan and colorful hue as when JRC delegates from all parts of the world gathered to be welcomed by Canadian Prime Minister John G. Diefenbaker.

Marching into Covocation Hall behind the flag of their country were Japanese girls in exquisite kimonos, Ceylon delegates draped in soft saris, tall Nigerians in vivid blouses and long multi-colored skirts. Indian boys in impeccable Western suits, lassies of Scottish origin from Nova Scotia, with blue tartan scarves and perky Glengarries.

In his welcoming address, Prime Minister Diefenbaker said the "humanitarian work of 55 million JRC members in 72 countries throughout the world strengthens the bonds of mutual cooperation and international friendship in a manner respected by all nations." His remarks were simultaneously translated into French and Spanish as he spoke.

Of course, there were numerous other important speakers and many other highlights during the days we have been in Canada. We've stored up memories we shall never forget, of a really wonderful experience.

Blind Teen-Agers Learn Professional Hair Styling

DETROIT — Teen-agers at Michigan's School for the Blind are getting professional lessons in hair styling and makeup, from members of the Lansing Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Assn.

Girl students clamor for appointments every other week, and in between times practice on each other, learning to develop their sense of touch in doing shampoos and pincurls, as well as in applying makeup.

The association provides the operators and supplies, and the school has converted an old laundry room into a beauty parlor.

Two of the most enthusiastic students are Jackie Chapman, 17, Lansing, and Dorothy Richard, 18, Grand Lodge. Jackie has shoulder-length reddish-brown hair and Dorothy is a natural blonde. Both girls confessed, in the first session, that they needed help in making a straight part, rolling a pincurl and setting bangs.

After instruction from the hairdressers, they are now able to produce professional-looking hairdos, shampooing each other's hair, setting with pincurls, drying, brushing out and setting with a final spray.

The new beauty course is the most popular in the school.

"This is one class," Jackie said, "that none of the girls would dream of skipping."

TEEN IDOL VISITS

'Kookie's' Shadow Threatens Edd Byrnes

By BETTY CARROLLTON

The happy-go-lucky youth who succeeded Presley-Clark-Nelson as king of the teen-age hearthrobs is living at a fast pace equal only to his fantastic rise to stardom. And the face he turned to his fans in Atlanta showed weary traces of the hectic pace that is keeping Edd "Kookie" Byrnes at the top of the heap.

He declared his schedule during the one-day stop in Atlanta to ballyhoo new movie, "Yellowstone Kelly," is typical, but not nearly as hectic as some. The day before his arrival in Atlanta, in fact, Edd (he prefers the use of his given name to "Kookie") made personal appearances at five different cities. And when he's in California, where he lives in a recently purchased house in Coldwater Canyon and films the "77 Sunset Strip" teleseries, he usually has at least five interviews with representatives of newspapers and magazines.

MEETS ATLANTA FANS

"I keep pretty busy," he grinned.

A highlight of his Atlanta visit was a conference with editors of local high school newspapers. The young journalists included Van Mullinax, O'Keefe; Charlotte Waid, Fulton; Jimmy Clotfelter, North Fulton; Sheila Lemming, West Fulton; Roger Hicks, Druid Hills; Ben Kimbrell, Hoke Smith. He also met winners of a local contest, including Edna Hodges, Decatur; Sharan Thomas, Elizabeth Elliott, Atlanta, and Ann Ross, Stone Mountain. Young Vickie Lynn, Georgia muscular dystrophy poster girl, was another caller at Edd's suite.

Prompted by questions from campus reporters, Edd set the record straight on a series of subjects.

Frankly admitting that he prefers movies to television work, Edd realizes that "Kookie" is his constant shadow wherever he goes. On location in Flagstaff, Ariz., for "Yellowstone Kelly," even the Navajo Indians used as extras greeted other members of the cast (including Clint Walker and John Russell) with the query: "Where's 'Kookie'?"

A group of Kookie's fans plotted his "kidnaping from his hotel room.

"Five or six girls broke into the room," Edd recalled, "but there really was not much trouble.

"I could handle it O.K.," he added, grinning.

The unassuming, soft-spoken youth revealed that he went into show business over the objections of his mother, a widow, who lives in New York. "But she thinks it's great now," he said.

TEEN AMBULANCE DRIVER

Previous to his acting career, the 27-year-old blond was a teen-age ambulance driver in New York. While some columnists have reported that on one of his calls Edd helped with the delivery of a baby, he dismissed the incident, explaining, "The baby was born in the ambulance en route to the hospital. I really didn't have much to do with it."

The well-groomed, pleasant actor got a boost in show business when he showed rare talent as a gunman in one of the "Cheyenne" western teleseries. The part led to a long-term contract with Warner Brothers. He appeared in featured roles in other TV shows, and had parts in a couple of movies. He was cast as a young killer in the initial segment of "77 Sunset Strip." The New Yorker's performance was so outstanding it sparked a terrific response from viewers. As a result, a completely new co-starring role in the series was created for him. Thus Kookie was born.

The star, however, emphasizes that Kookie is in no way the real Edd Byrnes. "It's just a character I portray," he insists. "In other roles, such as the one in 'Yellowstone Kelly,' I play completely different parts."

While the brand of jive jargo now known as "Kookie talk" dominates the speech of the 77 Sunset Strip parking lot attendant, such phrases are seldom heard in conversation with Edd Byrnes.

"I've never seen a beatnik," he revealed.

NO TIME FOR GIRLS

A sports-car enthusiast, the actor drives a white Thunderbird, is an expert at gymnastics ("I'm not much of a weight-lifter, though," he said), swimming and water skiing. He has an extensive record collection, including both modern and semiclassical. He drinks lots of orange juice, doesn't have too much time for girls and dating.

Six feet tall, weighing 165 pounds, the blue-eyed, handsome youth declared there's no serious romance in his life. Pinned down to individuals, including Sandra Dee, with whom his name has been linked by Hollywood columnists, Edd plucked another grape from the bunch he held in his hand and insisted:

"We're just friends, good friends."

Georgia Methodist Youth Attend National Meeting

A group of young Georgians is expected to be the largest delegation to the National Convocation of Methodist Youth, to be held at Purdue University, LaFayette, Ind., Aug. 24-28.

More than 100 Georgia delegates will leave Atlanta Sunday afternoon to attend the convocation, where they will hear such noted speakers as Harold E. Stassen, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, and outstanding religious leaders. The famed Dave Brubeck Quartet will be featured during one session.

Local delegates, representing the North Georgia District, will travel by train from Atlanta to Cincinnati, then via bus to LaFayette and Chicago. Special events have been planned for the Georgians, including tours of interesting points in Chicago, visiting Chinatown, Hoboland, the Ghetto. Following dinner in the Loop area, they will see the stage show, "The Music Man" at the Shubert Theater.

Bill Cole, Dahlonega, director of youth work for the North Georgia Conference, will be among the delegates.

"A wonderful experience is in store for us," he said. "We are all looking forward to the trip, and the events that will be a part of the convocation program."

The convocation theme will be explored through addresses, study discussions and the arts. Theology will be emphasized during the morning sessions. Afternoons will offer varied activity for the delegates.

The night programs will "attempt to explore man's current condition, to scrutinize the present social scene." They will lean heavily on the arts to "get their point across." Drama, music, films, the spoken word, lights and color will "be brought into play to bring perspective on man's present predicament."

RECORD ROUNDUP

Larry, Moe and Curly Make Disc Debut; Avalon Tagged 'America's Sweater Boy'

TURNTABLE TALK: Week's news items include several debuts worthy of attention: Johnny Desmond, whom many say had rather be an actor than a pop singer, gets the chance to display his dramatic talents on the Desilu Playhouse TV show Sept. 14, in the role of a shy young man who's Anna Marie Alberghetti's heart interest . . . Benny Goodman's 16-year-old daughter, Rachel, was a hit in her piano concert debut in Connecticut, with the great Benny accompanying her on the clarinet . . . Rusty Hamer, who plays Danny Thomas' son on the weekly TV show, has been signed to a recording contract by Mercury Records. His first single is scheduled for release soon . . . And The Three Stooges offer a zany disc from their first full-length movie, "Have Rocket, Will Travel." The Tinglers, a choice vocal group, add their talents to the wax-world "first."

Johnny Desmond Connie Francis

Connie Francis left for London on the heels of her latest smash, "You're Gonna Miss Me," with "Plenty of Lovin'" as the flip. She'll cut three albums, with orchestra leader Ray Ellis, while in England. One, "A Tribute to the Boys," will be a series of songs featuring boys' names . . . Connie Stevens, who was awarded a part on "77 Sunset Strip" just about the time she dueted with Edd Byrnes for "Kookie, Kookie, Lend Me Your Comb," will be a permanent member of the cast for another TV whodunit, "Hawaiian Eye" this fall.

Keen teen Dodie Stevens, who at 13 has three hit discs to her credit, is chafing at the parental bit: Dodie's level-minded parents insist the thrush is too young to date alone, Mom or Dad—usually both—accompany her nearly everywhere she goes. Dodie's been quoted as saying her parents are "unfair" to insist she not start dating until she's 16.

Our favorite Hollywood spy reports Fabian has replaced Dwayne Hickman as THE guy actress Tuesday Weld finds most interesting. They are seen together frequently, and, of course, the fact that Fabian and Tuesday are paired in a new rock 'n' roll film may be just coincidence. . . . Manufacturers expect big sales in sweaters for high school boys this fall, thanks to Frankie Avalon, who wears them so well and so often that he's being tabbed "America's Sweater Boy."

WELCOME WAXING: Louis Prima and Keely Smith score again with fine new treatment of oldie, "I'm Confessin'" . . . . The incomparable Homer and Jethro give their attention to a hilarious new version of a pair of hits by other singers. They take off on "The Battle of Kookamonga" backed by "Waterloo," presented as only they can, with special lyrics, of course. . . . Carl Perkins pounds out a promising new entry, "One Ticket to Loneliness," coupled with a surprisingly smoothe rendition of "I Don't See Me in Your Eyes Anymore." . . . Beauteous Rhonda Fleming turns in a pleasing performance on new single, "Nearer to Heaven" and "The Big Circus." . . . Debbie Reynolds has waxed the title tune from her new movie, "It Started With a Kiss," which could soar a la "Tammy." Flip is prettily presented "Love Is a Gamble." The latter tune has also been recorded by Eartha Kitt and probably will catch more attention than Debbie's entry. Eartha's rendition is coupled with an especially interesting item, "Sholem."

Debbie Reynolds Frankie Avalon

SOLID SENDERS: The Twisters go wild for solid blues instrumental, "Bandstand Rocket," backed by danceable 'Kat Walk." . . . Add to "wildest waxing" The Fidelitys' treatment of "Marie," with "The Invitation" as the flip. . . . Bobby Freeman asks "Where Did My Baby Go?" on new rocker, coupled with good, slow, rockaballad "My Guardian Angel." . . . Paul Anka climbs with another promising platter, "Don't Ever Leave Me" and "Put Your Head on My Shoulder." . . . Bill Justis is back in the swing with "Flea Circus." . . . Frankie Avalon has his best in a long time in "Just Ask Your Heart" and "Two Fools." . . . Vernon Taylor rounds the bend to Hitsville with "Mystery Train" and "Sweet and Easy to Love."

Student Wives Learn Quickly How To Schedule Family Life

By HARRIETTE WEINSTEIN

It's a different breed of living when your husband leads three lives.

Just ask any wife of a working-student-father. And Atlanta has a host of those—just try driving by Georgia State College just before school is out one evening.

Cars line the walks, while wives and tiny children wait for the sound of the bell to end the working and school day.

Advice from some of the old pros in handling this growing variation on "normal living" includes many pointers.

"First of all, understand your social calendar is going to be booked for weeks in advance," said one young wife. "After you schedule school nights, study nights and catching up on other tasks, that doesn't leave too much of the week for entertaining.

BEST SOLUTION

"We've found the best solution to this problem is to set aside one night a week for inviting people over or visiting. Then, barring final exams, we 'schedule' our friends.

"It takes some explanation when you ask them to come over week after next. But, pretty soon, you find the situation works out fairly well."

All the wives stress not overdoing engagements.

"Remember, your husband is putting in a full day at the office, a couple of nights at school and plenty of time on homework. A few rushed evenings in a row and he doesn't have the energy—or patience—doing any of his varied jobs well," added another wife.

With children, it's an even stronger case of the necessity of "scheduling time wisely."

PAYS TO SKIP

"We've found it pays to have me skip a quarter of school once and awhile just so I can catch up on keeping up my house and lawn and get to be with my wife and children," explained one husband.

"And," added his wife, "it helps to plan dinners and housework so that the early evening hours can be spent together. Then, my husband can do most of his studying after the children's bedtime.

"On school nights, I try to get them to sleep a little in the afternoon so they can stay up 'til Daddy gets home in the evening."

These wives, like any college housemother, will tell you the greatest time for patience and perfection is just before exams.

SORORITY HOUSEMOTHER

"I guess any student really feels the pressure around that time. And when a student is also carrying a full work schedule and full family responsibility, that triples the pressure," said a veteran wife. "It's hard to remember to bite your tongue when he complains about dinner or the noise or something. But after a few quarters, you get so that you not only take it all in stride but it doesn't even bother you."

(One housemother at a college sorority house added, "When I first started out as a housemother, I got quite upset when the girls started complaining about the meals around exam time when they had been so flattering about the meals earlier in the quarter. Then, after a few quarters, I caught on they were just letting off steam at something. I would give them a few 'surprises'—such as midnight snacks. And then I would just wish, at least as hard as the girls themselves, that exams would hurry up and end.")

Other bits of advice include let your husband sound off to you about his work; help him as much as possible, especially if there are typing jobs that could free him for other things; don't greet him at the door with problems—let him take a mental break for a little while, if possible.

"But it really isn't bad," smiled one couple. "You get used to the routine pretty quickly. And you've no idea how much fun such a busy schedule can make an evening with 'nothing to do'."

Chattanooga Magazine Features Chrissie McCutchen of Dalton

The pretty blonde on the cover of the current issue of Chattanooga's "The Lookout" is Chrissie McCutchen, daughter of the Joe K. McCutchens of Dalton, who will be a distinguished guest at the Cotton Ball on Aug. 28.

Since the theme of the ball is "The Cherokee Indians," Chrissie's presence will be particularly appropriate because on a visit to Oklahoma last summer with her grandmother, Mrs. B. J. Bandy of Dalton, she was made an honorary princess of the Cherokee Nation by Chief Justice Johnson of the Supreme Court of Oklahoma. Mrs. Bandy is an official ambassador of the Cherokee Nation.

GUEST AT BALL
Chrissie McCutchen

THE ARRIVAL NEXT WEEK of those former Atlantans, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Spencer, for a visit will be the signal for much entertaining among friends of the couple made during their residence in Mt. Vernon Woods. They are now living in Devon, Pa.

The Spencers are expected on Thursday and will be guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Feil of Dellwood drive. On the day after their arrival the Feils will be hosts at cocktails for their guests before taking them to Lake Lanier to spend the weekend aboard their house boat.

On Monday evening, Aug. 31, the B. D. Pollards will be hosts at dinner for the visitors at their Mystic drive residence, and on Tuesday, Sept. 1, Mr. and Mrs. Alan Yates, former neighbors of the Spencers, will entertain at cocktails and dinner at the home of Mrs. Yates' parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Robinson Jr., on The Prado. The Roy Carters have planned a dinner party for the visitors on Wednesday, Sept. 2.

THE SECOND SON BORN AUG. 18 at Emory hospital to Mr. and Mrs. John P. Rutter Jr. has been named Frank Pittman for his maternal grandfather. Mrs. Rutter is the former Joanna Pittman of Prattville, Ala. Her son is the great-grandson of Mrs. Joseph B. Boyd and Mrs. Frank Pittman, both of Griffin.

The Rutters, who have been living in Decatur, will move today to their new home at 6475 Long Island Dr.

LEAVING YESTERDAY for a weekend at King's Inn at Highlands, were Mr. and Mrs. William L. Holland, the Howard Johnsons, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Mitchell and the William Snellgroves.

The Hollands, incidentally, moved last week from 1220 Roxboro Dr. to a new home at 1931 Dellwood Dr.

BRIDE-ELECT DOLORES GARCIA will be honor guest when Raye Franco entertains at luncheon today at the Paradise Room. Miss Garcia will wed Truman Crowder of Columbus on Aug. 30.

MRS. HAL DAVISON'S FIRST VISITOR after moving into her new home on Tuxedo road was her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Peter Hal Davison, who has just left to join Capt. Davison at the U.S. Air Force Academy, where he has been transferred from his post in Berlin.

During her visit here Mrs. Davison, the former Marie Anne Piehler of Berlin, was the center of much social attention.

MRS. GLENN BRIDGES and her daughter, Lucy, have issued invitations for a tea on Tuesday honoring bride-elect Jean Lovell of Rome. The party will be held at 5 o'clock at their Seventeenth street home.

Lucy, who was a classmate of Miss Lovell at the University of Georgia, will be a bridesmaid in the latter's marriage to John Meyer on Sept. 5.

THE HERBERT J. ENGELS are packing again!

Just as Mr. and Mrs. Engel and their three sons really begin to enjoy Atlanta, they have to pack to move back to Chicago where Mr. Engel will be claim manager of the national accounts branch for Allstate Insurance Companies in the home office.

Not all of the family will be moving back. North, for two sons, Bob and John, will remain in Atlanta. Bob is a student at Georgia Tech and John will enter dental school at Emory. Bill, who was a Northside High sophomore last year, will go with his parents to Chicago.

THE TEEN-AGE set is recovering somewhat from the rock 'n' roll craze and taking to the smoother Latin rhythms and the English waltz, according to Mrs. Marian B. Springer, who is just back from the diamond jubilee convention of the Dance Masters of America held at the Shoreham in Washington, D.C.

FORMER ATLANTANS returning this week for a visit were Mrs. Oliver M. Lewis and her daughter, Judith, of Roanoke, Va., who are guests of Misses Alice and Margaret Harris on Delmont drive.

SHERRY SMITH of New Orleans is here for a visit to her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Noel Smith of College Park.

She Saw Boy Steal In Department Store

Dear Mrs. Ricker:

A couple of days ago I actually saw a boy about my own age (17) steal some things in a large department store.

In a flash I realized what would happen to him if I called the manager and I just didn't have the heart to do it. Instead, I followed him out of the store, caught up with him and asked him to hand over the things he had stolen.

He did and I was surprised to see that he didn't get angry or tough but acted rather shy and embarrassed. For a second I even felt like asking him to have a Coke with me so I could talk to him for a while. Anyhow, I left him and managed to put the things he had stolen back where they belonged.

Later it dawned on me how easily I could have been caught when putting the stuff back and nobody would have believed my story. So, I'm not quite sure that I did the right thing. Maybe I should have called the manager. What do you think?

Your problem is most unusual and baffling. Undoubtedly by returning the stolen merchandise you put yourself in what could have been a very serious, difficult situation.

However, what about the reactions of the boy who took the merchandise? Would it have been better for him if you had called the manager—and let the boy take his punishment?

What if you had made him take the stolen goods back himself? What might have happened if you had asked him to have that Coke with you?

It seems it would take the wisdom of Solomon to decide what was the best thing to do.

A 'Gripper' Hold on a Pen May Mean You're Explosive Personality

By RAYMONDE ALEXANDER
Constitution Fashion Editor

Maybe you secretly hate your best friend, love your neighbor's husband, want to strangle children, or poison dogs.

That's all right. Go ahead and feel that way. But don't think you've got a secret. And especially don't let a graphologist see a single line of your handwriting.

It's been known for sometime that the mystic of letter deciphering can pigeonhole you and, while your likes and dislikes, your aims and dreams may not be pinpointed exactly as above, they can type you. And you know that old saying about "she's just the type." Well, types have similar personality traits and these are the things that will be showing.

Now you not only have to be careful about the expose of your handwriting, you may have to cover up the way you hold your pen even when you're doodling.

PEN GRIP TELLS

This, you thought, meaningless pastime can trip you up just by your pen grip because your grip is now suspect for personality clues. But before you offer insight into yourself to others, check your grip by some simple observations as researched by a national ballpoint pen maker. This company makes a habit of delving into the where's, why's, and how's of almost everything concerned with Americans' writing habits. It has come up with six general personality types as revealed in the method of pen holding.

There's the "gripper." When you spot someone clinging tightly to her pen and holding it quite far from the ball point, keep in mind that you may be dealing with an "explosive personality." This person is usually tense, highly excitable and probably on the artistic side. Unconsciously she feels the need to "make sure" of the pen, hence her tight grip.

THE "LEAVER" TYPE

In contrast, there's the "leaner." She holds her pen loosely, even a bit lazily, and rests on the paper in a languid manner. The leaner, you can be fairly certain, is a casual person, ultra-relaxed. Because she is a difficult personality to arouse to firmness or decisiveness, you can probably count on her to coast along in a situation, remain unentangled and unencumbered.

When you spot someone meticulously pinching her pen between forefinger and thumb, realize you will be dealing with an assertive, down-to-earth, even aggressive personality. The "pincher" wants to command, to be obeyed. She shows this in the manner she puts the squeeze on her pen. She wants to be sure the pen "obeys" her.

The lowdown on the writer who grips her pen as if it might run away from her is also known. Labeled the "fister," this type of person clamps her pen in a wrestling hold, decidedly "steering" it. The fister probably best performs as an absolute boss. She exhibits, in her pen hold, an overurge to control, to bridle and saddle every situation. She must be master of all situations and is most probably anything but relaxed and definitely not a dreamer.

If you twirl a pen as you write, here's the impression you leave on others: You're most probably quite whimsical, lighthearted, and a fairly buoyant personality. You tend to be rather evasive and prefer to play with ideas and problems rather than meeting them head on.

Know yourself and others who employ the "dainty touch" as the epitome of social grace and sophistication. This technique is identified by a light and airy thumb and forefinger grip on the pen. Fingers not holding the pen are spread apart in an elegant showcase effect. Doodlings produced by the "dainty touch" tend to be as graceful and pictorial as the illusion given by the pen hold itself.

Recognize anyone you know? Of course, remember the she can just as well be he in your analysis.

RHYME A DAY

By OLLIE REEVES

"Women mature, mentally and physically, earlier than men. They also have a longer life-expectancy."—Article Quote.

I don't know how one can be sure . . . That, of the sexes, men mature . . . More slowly than the women do . . . I think a lot depends on who . . . You're thinking of when you compare . . . The sexes, for some women wear . . . A wisp of cloth that's little more . . . Than some small baby's pinafore.

The "barefoot-boy with cheeks of tan" . . . Grows up to be a knee-pants man . . . With hairy legs and knobby knees . . . His shirt-tail flapping in the breeze . . . (And this may bring some swift retorts . . . From men who wear Bermuda Shorts,) . . . While women, in their big bare feet . . . Go paddling down the the city street . . . With tinted heels and painted nails . . . Attracting scads of ogling males.

I tell you, when a man grows old . . . It almost makes his blood run cold . . . To see that mass of naked skin . . . That's bulging out or sinking in . . . And if they're judged by how they're dressed . . . I think they both have retrogressed.

YOUR STARS TODAY

Daily Guide—The moon in Aries usually creates a lively activity, but today there is less than usual of the Arian trend to push forward. If possible, take your ease wherever you are; don't rise to the challenge to be on the go. Sometimes you can miss just as much fun by running after it as sitting on the sidelines; time out for a stretch can increase your enjoyment later, so make today one of those periods. If working, you can achieve the same effect by refusing to be pushed into rushing.

Tomorrow a good day for dreaming if you have the chance to relax in the sun or shade.

Light Plane Hunted in Near Crash

The Federal Aviation Agency has started a search for a small private plane that almost collided with an Eastern Airliner Wednesday night near Stone Mountain.

Browning Adams, supervising inspector of FAA's Air Carrier Safety District Office, said the Eastern Air Lines passenger plane was headed northeast at an altitude of about 4,000 feet when the pilot spotted a smaller craft headed toward him.

The pilot halted his climb and started his plane into a dive.

Passengers could suddenly see themselves the victims of a tragic accident.

The plane was going down and lights went dim. "How are we going to come out of this crash," thought attorney Richard J. Foster of Greenville, S.C., one of 32 passengers.

PLANE TILTED

The plane tilted awkwardly. A woman screamed and some of the passengers dropped their dinner trays.

After an interminable time—"I couldn't tell how long," Foster said—the engines started again and the plane began to come out of its dive.

The private plane had zoomed overhead, about 300 feet distant. Eastern Air Lines Captain R. J. Korges, the pilot, had had from five to seven seconds to act.

"He deserves a lot of credit," Foster said.

COMBING FIELDS

Adams described the private craft as a cream and brown piper Tri-Pacer plane. He said investigators were combing landing fields in the middle and north Georgia areas attempting to locate it but so far had been unsuccessful.

The near-crash took place about 7:24 p.m. Wednesday. Adams said that the sky was not completely dark and that visibility was good up to 15 miles.

Romania Orders Amnesty for Liberation Day

VIENNA (UPI)—Radio Bucharest said Friday that Romania's Communist government had ordered an amnesty to mark the 15th anniversary of "the liberation of the country from Fascism."

Persons sentenced to prison terms of up to five years will be freed. Other sentences will be reduced, the broadcast said. The amnesty will not apply to "political crimes," murder, burglary, embezzlement of state property and other crimes against "nationalized property," the broadcast said.

Hospital Authority Sells Wreckers Old Building

The Fulton-DeKalb Hospital Authority Friday accepted the $1,000 offer of the Skinner Wrecking Co. for the old Georgia Power Co. building at Armstrong street and Piedmont avenue, SE.

The building will be demolished and a Negro student nurses home will be erected on the site.

The authority also authorized a partial payment of $6,300 to the management consultant firm that is making a survey of the operation of Grady Memorial Hospital.

The authority also announced it will advertise for lease bids for its parking lot near the Municipal Auditorium on Edgewood avenue, NE.

Caution Brakes Market Upsurge

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market sat tight in the wake of Thursday's sharp upsurge.

Price gains about matched losses as key shares generally shifted only fractions. A handful of selected issues did suffer profit taking.

The market failed to show any follow through on Thursday's dazzling rally, the biggest since Nov. 27, 1957. The lethargy stemmed from investor concern about the lengthening steel strike and normal pre-weekend caution, brokers said.

Steels and rails, the sparkplugs of Thursday's upswing generally gave ground. Coppers and oils also eased.

But a number of electronic and retail store shares staked out gains. Motors, rubbers, aircrafts, airlines, chemicals and tobaccos were mixed.

American & Foreign Power fell 1⅞ to 12⅜ on 35,600 shares. The decline was attributed to a Cuban ruling ordering a 30 per cent cut in utility electric rates in Havana.

Coppers weakened as an industry strike spread. American Smelting sank 1⅛, while Anaconda, Kennecott and Phelps Dodge fell fractions.

Mill Sales Buoy Staple

NEW YORK (AP) — Cotton futures closed 5 to 30 cents a bale higher. Most of the support was credited to mill buying against textile sales. Some local and commission house demand was also noted. This was partly credited to chart followers. Offerings came through hedging by spot firms in light volume and some professional profit taking.

E. B. Mell, Principal 48 Years, Dies

ATHENS, Ga. (AP)—One of Georgia's leading high school educators, Edward B. Mell, died Friday at 86. He had been hospitalized for three weeks.

The funeral will be held at 4 p.m. Sunday at the First Baptist Church of Athens. Burial will be in Oconee Hills Cemetery.

Mr. Mell had been a school principal for 48 years and had seen at least 10,000 young people receive diplomas. He became the first principal of Athens High School upon its establishment in 1909 and served there for 34 years. He then, at 70, became principal at nearby Danielsville and served there three years. Earlier, he had directed the Baxter Street School, Athens, for 11 years.

Only recently the Clarke County Board of Education announced that it is naming a new junior high school gymnasium in his honor.
